Roosevelt Forecasts Record Debt and Deficit

MESSAGE ON BUDGET SENT TO CONGRESS

President Sees Net Deficit of $1,088,129,600; Public Debt of $38,528,200,000.

BALANCED BUDGET OUT

Revenues to Be Insufficient Despite $539,000,000 Slash In Spending Plans.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt sent congress a budget message today which projected new billion-dollar treasury deficits and a new public debt peak despite estimates of lesser spending.

His forecast for the 1939 fiscal year contemplated a $539,000,000 cut in government outlays—"the most important fact of this budget," Mr. Roosevelt said—but conditioned the reduction on an upturn in business and national defense requirements

Deficit One Billion.

The president's big volume of budget figures estimated a net deficit of $1,088,129,600 for the current fiscal year and $949,606,000 for the next 12 months which he noted would be successive declines. The public debt, he said, would reach a $38,528,200,000 high on June 30, 1939.

In addition, Mr. Roosevelt left the treasury's doors ajar to the possibility of more spending for human relief and for armaments "due to world conditions over which this nation has no control."

The continued deficit was attributed to a sharp drop in expected revenue because of the business recession. President Roosevelt acknowledged that for the first time since he became chief executive he faced less, rather than more, governmental income.

To obtain next year's estimated spending slash of $539,000,000, the president cut his estimates for relief and recovery to $1,138,304,000 — down $841,356,600 from this year's figures. But he added:

"The economic situation may not improve and if it does not, I expect the approval of congress and the public for additional appropriations if they become necessary to save thousands of American families from dire need."

Relief Included.

Nevertheless, for the first time in three years the president pre-

Quaintance Baby Awarded Gifts as First of New Year

With no other contender to claim the title, gifts offered by Mansfield merchants today were awarded to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Quaintance, 184 East Second street, as Mansfield's first baby of 1938. Their baby, who has been named John Howard, was born four minutes after 1938 arrived last Friday midnight.

A group of merchants offered a variety of gifts for baby and parents, all of them to go to the first baby born in the new year.

Among the gifts are a week's supply of milk from the Page Dairy company; a supply of baby food of nationally advertised brands from the Park Grocery company; a supply of fruit juices and pure baby foods from the Square Deal Food stores; and a pair of baby shoes from the Liberty Shoe store, and a baby robe from the John S. Jones company. The Ohio Fuel Gas company has an unannounced gift for the baby.

Gifts to the parents will include one rough dry family washing from the Calvert Laundry; a ton of coal from the Estes Coal company; a lubrication service from Firestone for the family car; and free transportation from hospital to the home for mother and baby in the Jones ambulance.

CLAIM VICTORY

Loyalists Say Insurgents Fail to Re-take Teruel.

HENDAYE, FRENCH-SPANISH FRONTIER —(UP)— Spanish loyalists, holding their lines against new nationalist attacks on right and letf flanks, asserted with apparent confidence today that they had broken the nationalist drive on Teruel.

There was an intimation in nationalist communiques, which mentioned unsuccessful loyalist attacks, that the government forces had begun feeling out the insurgent lines for a weak spot which might permit a counter offensive

The weather in the Teruel sector was now clear. But deep snow covered the ground still, roads were covered with ice or deep slush, and cold was taking a toll comparable to that of shells and bullets among the exhausted, hungry men carrying on the fight at a temperature of five above zero.

HUNTER CALLS FOR 6-POINT CITY PROGRAM

Plans Outlined In First Talk to Council Urges More Police, Firemen.

CITES SEWER TROUBLES

Opposes Mortgage Bonds For Waterworks, Advocates Muny Auditorium.

Addressing city council for the first time as the city's chief executive, Mayor Claude M. Hunter outlined a six-point program last night for his administration, calling for:

1. Enlarged police personnel.
2. More firemen and equipment.
3. Continuation of water development.
4. Revamping of city sewer system.
5. Opposition to mortgage revenue bonds on water system.
6. Municipal auditorium.

Urging more policemen, which he took up first in his talk, Hunter said that "now, more than ever before with the ever increasing traffic problem, we need more men in this department."

Says Traffic Tangled.

"With the traffic problem in Mansfield all tangled up, we need enforcement and we need policemen to enforce the ordinances we have"

He pointed out that this statement was not intended to cast any reflection on preceding administrations.

Hunter told council that "time and again you have heard that the fire department is undermanned and needs new equipment."

"With some of the antiquated equipment now in use, it is a wonder they get back when called out on an alarm," he said.

Urges Early Action.

"I insist that thought be given to this matter at once for the protection and welfare of the city and suggest that early attention be given to a new No. 2 fire station."

Following this the mayor took up water development, the need for revamping the city's entire sewer system, expressed his opposition to the issuing of mortgage revenue bonds against the water system, suggested the erection of a municipal garage, and then said he would like council to give some thought to a municipal auditorium.

Before advancing his auditorium idea, Hunter injected a little humor in the meeting by quoting the old song, "I'm forever blowing bubbles—pretty bubbles in the air . . . and like my dreams they fade and die"

"We never get anything unless we say and do something about it," he told council in referring to his proposal for a municipal

Newest New Deal Firebrand

Robert H. Jackson for president? The assistant attorney general of the United States and chief of the anti-trust division of the department of justice, is the latest New Dealer to be boomed as a possibility as Democratic nominee in 1940. According to some observers, President Roosevelt himself has mentioned Jackson as a possibility. He is also the indicated choice of pro-New Dealers for the Democratic nomination for governor of New York. The 45-year-old Jackson has been much in the news lately, having made speeches charging an "aristocratic anarchy" with fostering a general strike of capital in America to coerce political action. Jackson asserts that big business is seizing on a business recession to "liquidate the New Deal." He has been the president's chief adviser in the new anti-monopoly campaign.

Night Clubs Get Another 'Stay' From Curfew Order

Bates Grants Second 'Grace Period' Pending Action By Council—Kalbfleisch Urges Stricter Laws.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates today gave Mansfield night club operators another "grace period" before enforcing the city ordinance calling for 1 a. m. closing, pending action by a council committee, headed by Russell D Porch, on the request of night club owners for a change in the ordinance.

Bates said Porch had informed him the committee would have a "full and final" report ready for the next council meeting, scheduled for Feb. 1.

Judge Opposes Amendment.

But whatever action the committee takes on the request for amendment of the ordinance to permit night clubs to remain open until 2 30 a m, the hour set in state regulations, it has before it a vigorous protest against amendment from Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch from whom Porch asked data and an opinion on the change.

Judge Kalbfleisch not only opposed any liberalizing of the existing ordinance—which has never been enforced—but recommended that even more stringent regulations be applied

"If any action should be taken by council, it should be in further curtailment of privileges now existing," Kalbfleisch wrote

Early in December, Bates ordered all night clubs and places holding D-3A permits, which un-

Hunt Nude Couple Roaming Mountains As Prisoners of Religious Fanatic

Deputies Start Search as Mother Flees From Cave Dwelling.

LOS ANGELES—(UP)—Sheriff's deputies went out to Gabriel Canyon today to rescue a young couple who were reported to be roaming the mountains like animals, nude or nearly so, almost starving and held under the domination of a religious fanatic.

The officers had a warrant for Mark Silverman, 38, a shoemaker, who, according to his mother, came home one day last September, kicked open the door and shouted to the family:

"I am Jesus Christ."

Then he told the family that the world was coming to an end on Christmas eve and he was going to prepare them for it. He destroyed everything in the house, smashed the china, burned the bedclothes and furniture and discarded all the fixtures that were loose He gathered up a few scanty clothes and a bag of walnuts, loaded his mother, brother and sister-in-law into an automobile and hied them off to the canyon, where he has kept them ever since.

He set the mother, 62-year-old Mrs Rebecca Silverman, fee last Sunday because the rigors of the mountain life were ruining her health, and it was the mother's story that sent the officers into the canyon today to hunt for Mark Silverman and rescue his brother, Joe, 23, and Joe's pretty wife, Becky Silverman, 19

JURY TO OPEN PAROLE PROBE HERE JAN. 17

Duffy Says Special Panel to Look Into O. S. R. Angles of State Inquiry.

WORD ON QUIZ AWAITED

Franklin County Jurors to Make Partial Report Next Monday.

A special Richland county grand jury will be called "about Jan. 17" to go into Mansfield reformatory angles of the Ohio parole investigation, the Associated Press reported Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy as saying today.

Duffy, in Columbus, announced that the Franklin county (Columbus) grand jury would make a partial report and recess Monday, Jan. 10. The Mansfield grand jury would be convened about a week later.

County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott and Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke of the reformatory said they had heard nothing from Duffy concerning the convening of the grand jury.

2 Indictments to Date.

The Richland county grand jury will be one of several Duffy has said he would call in his parole investigation, which has resulted in two perjury indictments in Franklin county.

After the Richland county grand jury finishes, another special panel will be called in Union county, where the Marysville reformatory for women is located

The Associated Press said Duffy did not specify whether the Franklin county grand jury would report any findings or recommendations when it recesses next week. He made clear, however, that no more indictments would be returned until after completion of the Richland and Union county investigations

Witness Faces Citation.

He added that unless Arch W Naylor of Canton, came to Columbus to testify before the grand jury, that he would be cited for contempt.

Meanwhile, Richland officials awaited word from Duffy as to the impaneling of a special grand jury here. Under the law, a grand jury must be impaneled in the county in which it conducts its investigation. It was expected, however, that Duffy might decide to present evidence to the jury himself.

It was announced today that Johnny Kilbane, Cleveland, former world's featherweight boxing champion, had been added to Duffy's staff as a special investigator.

LOUISVILLE, Ky —(AP)—The fugitive trail of Wendell Forrest Bowers, sought since December 13 in connection with the slaying of an attractive Pennsylvania widow, was ended here today.

Bowers was arrested here December 20th on a vagrancy charge.

The youth's identity became known when a routine check of his fingerprints, forwarded to Washington by Louisville police, revealed him to be Bowers

Mrs Carpenter was killed attempting to aid a friend, Miss Mary Griffin, 22, beauty shop operator, when they were attacked by an intruder.

COUNTY WINDS UP IN 'BLACK'

Squeezes Through Year With $420 Balance But Auditor Says Things Are 'Rosy.'

With some close figuring, Richland county finished 1937 with a balance of $420 in the general fund, which was virtually the same as the county started with a year ago, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today.

Added to the county's balance is, $80,000 in the bond retirement fund which will be applied on a $200,000 debt, the auditor said.

Despite the meager balance, Wolfe said the county begins the year in a healthy financial condition, and with salaries back to "something like the normal figure."

"It was not unusual for the county to wind up its year's business $50,000 to the good a few years ago," Wolfe said, "but considering the fact htat we have the second lowest operating tax rate of any county in the state and a low tax valuation, the present picture is far from dark"

Work will be started early next week on the 1938 appropriation which is expected to increase the county's general fund allowance slightly over the 1937 figure, he indicated Approximately $300,000 was used for general operating expenses during 1937.

"We were conservative in setting up last year's appropriation," Wolfe declared, and were able to make supplementary appropriations totaling about $25,000 during the year, when tax collections mounted beyond expectations"

LEAVES POST ON SUPREME COURT JAN. 18

Gives Roosevelt 2nd Chance to Appoint Member to High U. S. Tribunal.

CLASSED AS 'DISSENTER'

Justice Had Voted Against New Deal 12 Times, Later Favored Some.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Associate Justice George Sutherland notified President Roosevelt today that he would retire from his position on the supreme court Jan. 18.

His advanced age—he will be 76 years old in March—was given by friends as the chief reason for his quitting the bench. Since he is leaving under provisions of the supreme court retirement act, he probably will continue, however, to do some work in the lower courts.

The resignation is the second since President Roosevelt, less than a year ago, proposed to reorganize the supreme court by enlarging it from nine to 15 members, if those over 70 did not retire. On last June 2 Associate Justice Willis Van Devanter retired at the age of 78.

Recalls Bitter Fight.

To succeed Van Devanter President Roosevelt appointed Senator Hugo L. Black, Alabama Democrat. Black was the center of a brief, hot controversy over his former affiliation with Ku Klux [illegible] successfully to unseat him.

Thus Sutherland's resignation will give President Roosevelt his second opportunity to name a member of the high court.

When Sutherland steps down only two members will remain on the tribunal who generally are referred to by administration spokesmen as conservative. They are McReynolds, 75, and Butler, 71.

This situation was responsible for most of the quickly expressed reaction on Capitol Hill. Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) said Sutherland's action was "further evidence that it wasn't necessary to pack the supreme court."

Wheeler was a leader of the opposition to Mr. Roosevelt's bill for enlarging the tribunal The measure was shelved at the regular session last summer.

Opinion Divided.

Among Roosevelt supporters there was divided opinion as to the significance of the action. Senator Minton (D., Ind.), a leader in the fight for the bill, said the retirement undoubtedly would "help the court situation."

Senator Logan (D., Ky.) de-

Jury Probes Deeper Into Pardons Granted By White

QUIZ FORMER GOVERNOR ON MARINO CASE

Jurors Expected to Hear More Testimony by Ex-Secretary, Clemency Advisor.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The grand jury investigating alleged irregularities in the state parole system was expected today to dig deeper into the pardons granted criminals by former Gov. George White.

Asst. Atty. Gen. George Hurley said that a subpoena would be issued for Attorney S. P. Dunkle, who was White's executive secretary ad adviser on clemency matters.

Frees Bank Robber.

It was White who commuted the sentence of Roy (Happy) Marino, Youngstown bank robber, releasing him from prison after he had served 14 months of a 20-year term.

White testified before the jury an hour and a half Monday. Several other persons have been questioned about the case of Marino, who was shot to death last Sept. 9 in a slaying attributed to the underworld.

C. C. Crabbe of Columbus, a former attorney general, was called before the jury today, presumably for questioning about Louis C. Vandervort, a prisoner at the London prison farm. Vandervort was granted a parole effective last Dec. 20, but the parole board rescinded it upon request of the grand jury.

Board records show that Crabbe once requested permission to appear before the board in Vandervort's behalf. Vandervort is serving a life sentence for killing a Wilmington policeman in an attempted burglary.

Pealer Summoned.

Winfield S. Pealer, former Columbus safety director, is scheduled to appear before the jury tomorrow, and probably will be asked whether he helped any prisoners obtain paroles or pardons.

Three nurses from White Cross hospital were questioned late yesterday as the jury delved further into the pardon granted by Gov. Martin L. Davey to Kenyon V. Painter, former Cleveland banker. Painter was pardoned on the ground he was near death. The nurses attended him at the hospital.

If Your Panties Fall, Lady, It's Not an Emergency

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Common Pleas Judge Frank P. Merrick held today that the falling off of a lady's "unmentionables" does not create an emergency warranting trespass.

Mrs. Daisy Campbell, in a $5,000 personal damage suit against Rollin L. Bacher, said she was passing a building owned by Bacher when "parts of her underwear" fell to the sidewalk.

She fled to an alcove in Bacher's building and fell down an open coal chute.

Harley McNeal, defense attorney, argued that "a woman's pants falling down did not create an emergency that would warrant trespass."

Judge Merrick agreed and dismissed the suit.

3 STATES HUNT TRIPLE KILLER

Ohio Farmhand Sought After Three Are Found Dead In Home Near Youngstown.

YOUNGSTOWN —(AP)— Officers of three states searched today for a 21-year-old farmhand in an effort to solve the slaying of two men and a woman on their side-road farm near North Lima, 10 miles south of here.

Henry Baumeister, 35, and his 40-year-old wife were found dead and Baumeister's father, Theodore, 60, fatally wounded late yesterday.

Coroner David H. Hauser said a post mortem examination disclosed the younger Baumeister was killed by a shotgun blast while the others were savagely hacked and beaten to death.

The farmhand, Sheriff Ralph E. Elser said, was seen driving from the scene in the Baumeister's automobile an hour before an itinerant salesman discovered Henry Baumeister's body on the kitchen floor.

The salesman hastened to a nearby farm after the gruesome discovery. Neighbors found the elder Baumeister at the point of death in the barn and the body of his daughter-in-law covered by hay. The man died en route to a hospital without regaining consciousness.

Elser broadcast to Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia authorities descriptions of the youth, who came from Pennsylvania, and the automobile.

AILING HEFLIN NOT TOLD OF DEFEAT BY HILL, NEW DEALER

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. —(AP)— Rep. Lister Hill, staunch New Deal supporter of President Roosevelt, has won the senate seat of Justice Hugo L. Black in a smashing victory, over "Cotton Tom" Heflin, who did not know his comeback effort had failed.

Ill with lobar pneumonia, Heflin, 68-year-old veteran of many political campaigns, was unaware that Alabama had rejected his bid for the senate seat he once held and had turned to the 43-year-old congressman from Montgomery, a member of the house of representatives for 15 years.

Heflin's aids, who conceded defeat and congratulated Hill, said the former senator, on the road to recovery at Lafayette, had lost count of the days during delirium and was unaware that yesterday was primary day.

Hill had a walkaway in the three cornered primary election against Heflin and Charles W. Williams, and will serve out Black's term which expires January, 1939.

Hill, in a statement, said "It was a victory for the great cause of human welfare as proclaimed in the Democratic platform and embodied in the inspiring leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

ADMIT HOLD-UP MURDER WHICH NETTED $2.10

Policeman's Daughter, Friend Hold Driver Was Killed as He Grabbed Gun.

NEWARK, N J.—(U.P.)—Mannish 20-year-old Ethel Stohl and her 17-year-old girl friend, Genevieve Owens, faced murder charges today for slaying a bus driver in a holdup that netted them $2.10.

The girls confessed, police announced, that their brief criminal career resulted in the slaying of William Barhorst, father of two young children, on the night of Dec. 21 in Belleville, N J, near Newark.

Mrs. Stohl, whose husband, William, 23, is serving an indeterminate term in the Annandale reformatory for tampering with his aged father's bank account, met Miss Owens in the county reform school where both were sent as delinquents. They formed a cloes friendship, and planned a series of holdups for "pin money"

Leads to Arrests.

Miss Owens was arrested Monday after dropping a chance remark to Mrs. Catherine Durning, a probation officer. She was asked about her financial status, and replied:

"If things don't get better there will have to be a holdup"

Mrs. Durning considered the remark significant, and summoned her superior, Chief Probation Officer Joseph Murray, who in turn notified the police. The girl soon disclosed her friendship with Mrs. Stohl and told police where to find her.

Both girls were questione throughout the night. Yesterday, police said, they confessed and re-enacted the Barhorst holdup. They also told police of having robbed two filling stations.

While they were being questioned, Mrs. Stohl revealed she was the daughter of Frank Strouse, a Newark radio car policeman, who had been among the patrolmen assigned to search for the Barhorst slayers. Strouse collapsed when told of his daughter's confession.

Acting Captain Joseph Cocozza of the Newark detective staff said the girls told the following story:

When they were released from the reformatory about a month ago Mrs Stohl went to live with Miss Owens' family. The girls slept in the same bed, and lay awake nights planning crimes.

Mrs. Stohl obtained a 22 caliber rifle with a sawed off barrel and a shortened stock. On the night of Dec. 21, they stole an automobile and made several trips along the route over which Barhorst drove for the City Service Transit company. Tehy picked out Barhorst's bus, drove ahead of it and stopped. Mrs. Stohl got out and signaled When Barhorst stopped, she whipped out the gun and cried: "This is a stick-up, Hold up your hands." Barhorst grabbed for the gun and was shot.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

A Question of Pressure.

CONGRESS being composed of politicians whose primary purpose is to stay in politics, obviously the fact that this is an election year is bound to play an important part in the session which opened Monday with the president's message. It considerably heightens the political flavor as compared to immediately preceding sessions.

IF IT were not an election year, the session might last until late in the summer As it is, adjournment is expected some time in May in order to afford members opportunity to look after their extremely vital—to them—political affairs. Every one of the 435 representatives in the house and one-third of the senators must be renominated and re-elected this year Most of the primaries, which are the key to all politics, take place between June and October. The first concern of every sitting member of congress is to take that primary hurdle successfully; the second is to succeed in the November elections.

THIS BEING the case, it is inevitable that in the front of every man's mind at this session should be the thought of how his vote will affect his chances in the primary and general election, which follow so quickly upon the heels of the session that there is no time to straighten out and explain. Under normal circumstances, practical politicians know that this gives increased influence to the organized minorities It adds to the weight of their threats and tends to make members in close districts or states, with probable primary competition, more anxious to placate and conciliate militant groups of voters.

IT SO happens that the lobby representatives of the more formidable organized groups—labor, agriculture and the colored vote —are allied with the administration, or it with them. The administration program is specially de-signed to appeal to them and, to some extent, has been formulated by them. This is the basic reason for confidence of the White House spokesmen and interpreters that there will be at this session no such sensational revolt against the Roosevelt leadership as characterized both the extra session and the regular session of last year. On the contrary, they expect the organized minorities, plus fear of administration reprisals in primaries, to take all the fight out of recalcitrant and dissenting Democrats in congress, make them amenable and "loyal"

IF nothing else produces this result, the administration politicians believe apprehension of White House encouragement to aspiring rivals against those who oppose the president's wishes will be particularly potent in keeping them in line. It seems sound political reasoning, but it overlooks one big possibility—to wit, an aroused sentiment among the voters in states and districts who do not belong to these organized minorities and who feel very differently about the whole situation. Last year, it was just such a sentiment manifested against the court packing bill, which killed that pet proposal of the president and wrecked his whole program. It was an absence of any genuine public sentiment back of his extra-session program, plus the division among the labor leaders, which rendered it futile.

IT HAS BEEN generally agreed that congress in the extra session, disturbed by the new depression and reflecting the feeling of the people, was more anxious to take action designed to relieve business of possible burdens and restore confidence by a conservative course than was the president. It is also a fact, not open to dispute, that congress would have taken steps in that direction if the White House influence, exerted through its administration legislative leaders, had not prevented. If this sentiment, which undoubtedly exists, becomes vibrant during this session, it may easily nullify the force of the organized minorities and dissipate fear of administration reprisals.

IT IS A QUESTION of how much pressure the constituents not in tune with *the presidential program choose to put upon their senators and representatives. If they are as vigorous as they were in the court fight, they can achieve the same result so far as the more radical proposals are concerned and compel a greater degree of economy and retrenchment than the administration want. There is every reason to believe that the great bulk of the people are sick of experimentation and extravagance, anxious to return to a safety and sanity not at all associated with the New Deal. Unorganized, they are not represented by paid agents in Washington and if they remain inert the organized minorities will dominate But if they become interested, concerned and active as they were last year when they literally deluged their individual representatives with letters, it will be a very different story, indeed.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's getting so the movie studios keep their jail sets standing. Movie iron bars do not a prison make, but they take up a lot of reelage.

Carole Lombard looked through them in "True Confession," Gladys George in "Madame X," Phyllis Brooks in "City Girl," Edward G Robinson in "The Last Gangster," Robert Taylor and Victor Meaglen served three-reel sentences in "This Is My Affair," which probably was a record penalty outside of "San Quentin" and "Alcatraz Island," which were entirely about prison life.

In "Wise Girl," Miriam Hopkins gets Ray Milland jugged to make him work as an artist, and in "Happy Landing," Ethel Merman for similarly romantic reasons sends Don Ameche to the hoosegow. "The Prisoner of Zenda," offered a more romantic type of jail, and "Love Is News" and "Second Honeymoon" both had prison stuff for laughs.

Even good old Charlie Chan went to jail for his Monte Carlo screen adventure, and half of George Sanders' dual role in "Lancer Spy" was confined throughout the film This would beat the Taylor-McLaglen record except that half a role can't surpass two, and then McLaglen did another stunt in "Nancy Steele Is Missing."

"There's no well-defined reason for the popularity of jail sets, unless it's that jail is pretty dramatic, representing a serious "obstacle," or pretty funny—if the inmate is someone else.

Last season the colony's hit-leader was Metro, turning out such attractions as "Libeled Lady," "The Great Ziegfeld," "Born to Dance," "After The Thin Man," "Maytime," "The Good Earth," and—in a freak box-office sense "Saratoga."

This new season it looks like United Artists, where between David O. Selznick and Sam Goldwyn they've put out "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Stella Dallas," "Dead End," "The Hurricane," "Nothing Sacred," and reams of publicity on "Gone With the Wind." Figured for big money likewise are the unreleased "Tom Sawyer" and "Marco Polo" and "Goldwyn Follies."

For Metro, this far in advance, "Rosalie" looks like a best bet, with "Benefits Forgot" a dark horse of importance. But there's still time for Leo to growl more fiercely.

Here's how Barney Balaban, Paramount president, sees the 1938 production trend: more and more dizzy, slapstick type screen plays, more and more comedies generally, many of them musicals; next in importance, stories on early American history, i.e., "Wells Fargo," "The Buccaneer." Gangsters are out, except in the B's, and old-fashioned tear-jerkers, together with political and social themes, will be rare.

But, with the public, you never can tell—as Mr. Balaban is careful to add.

MANSFIELD TEACHER MARRIES WARREN GIRL

Miss Marie Schneider, Earl L. Heasley Wed at Home of Bride's Sister, Johnstown—Couple Takes Eastern Trip Over Holidays.

THE HOME of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Poling, Johnstown, was the scene of the wedding of Miss Marie Schneider, Warren, and Earl L. Heasley, Mansfield, on Christmas day, it was learned here late yesterday. Miss Schneider, who is the sister of Mrs. Poling and the daughter of Jacob Schneider, Johnstown, and Mr. Heasley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Heasley, Newton Falls, were united in marriage in a single ring ceremony at 12:30 p. m. by Rev. Ellingsworth.

Mr. Schneider gave his daughter in marriage. Nuptial music was played by Miss Jean Dixon, Johnstown. Miss Nellie Schneider, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Don Cruickshank, Cuyahoga Falls, was best man.

For the ceremony Mrs. Heasley wore a floor length gown of blue taffeta made with a full skirt and a brief train. She wore a shoulder length dubonnet veil which was caught by a coronet of silver flowers which matched her slippers. Her bouquet was Lester Hubbard roses tied with dubonnet ribbon. The bridegroom's gift, a strand of pearls, was the only jewelry worn by Mrs. Heasley.

Miss Schneider was attired in a floor length gown of salmon lace and she carried Talisman roses. Mr. and Mrs. Heasley have just returned from a wedding trip through the east. For travel Mrs. Heasley wore a brown velvet and taffeta ensemble with matching accessories.

Following the ceremony a reception and luncheon was given at the Poling home for members of the families. Mr. and Mrs. Heasley, parents of the bridegroom, were present for the wedding.

Mr. Heasley is dramatic instructor at Mansfield High school and lives on Ausdale avenue. Previous to his appointment in Mansfield he taught at the Newton Falls high school from which he was graduated. Mrs. Heasley also taught in Newton Falls and at present she is in the commercial department of the Warren G. Harding junior high school at Warren.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Heasley will complete the school year in their respective schools. They plan to take up residence in Mansifeld in the fall.

Six-Footer Wants Sweet, Nice Girl

By VIRGINIA LEE

DEAR MISS LEE. I'm just like that boy, Bill. I am a big six-footer also, but it seems I get the girls all right, but I get played for a sucker all the time. I'm getting sick of it, but I don't know what to do about it.

"I would like to get hold of a nice, sweet girl, but it seems they all fall for thin fellows, and us husky boys are out of luck. Will you please tell me what to do? Maybe if I get some pointers I might have better luck.

"BILL K."

Are you definitely fat, Bill? The "nobody loves a fat man" type? If so, it would be good to train down a bit, or curb your appetite a little. How about it?

If you are merely big and "husky," as you say, I think you have the inside track with the girls—believe it or not. Girls like their men big and strong. They want someone who looks capable of protecting them from a hard world. (Incidentally, they never do, however, I've found.)

You can't be a good picker, Bill. Usually a girl's first requisite for a boy friend is that he be big and strong. Then that he be genuine, not a kidder, but a chap who can say nice things and mean them. That he thinks of the girl as well as himself; that he consult with her as to where they shall go and what they will do, but have some ideas of his own on the subject, too. That he be courteous, neat in appearance. She wants a man she can be proud of, but not a dandy who thinks too much of his own appearance.

Girls like men who think for themselves, but give a girl credit for having some brains and don't pooh pooh all her ideas. One who can be pleasant and jolly with her dad and mother, brothers and sisters. The girls may not admit that they want their brothers to like their boy friends, but they do, nevertheless. A man who makes a hit with a girl's brothers, as well as the other members of the family, has a much better chance, all things considered, than the one the family does not care for.

A well-informed chap, who can talk intelligently and hold his own in a discussion is an asset to a girl, and if he is good at games, especially so-called manly games, that is all to the good.

If you have a fair percentage of these qualities, Bill, you should be a success with the ladies, my son— provided you pick normal girls.

HOPEFUL: The only way you two can marry, feeling as you do, is to each go to your own church after marriage and never mention religion other than that. Why would it not be fair for half the children to go to your church and half to his? If neither of you can concede that point, and you are not willing to be married by his priest, you will simply have to separate. There is no other way.

* * *

DESERT BLOOM: Of course I think parents should tell children about the "facts of life." If sex is never made to seem indecent it will make all life much easier for the young folk, and they will not be so likely to get into trouble.

ONLY ONE OFFENSE: It is an odd thing that girls never can see why men enjoy seeing girls in "leg shows," and men never can understand why girls go so wacky over orchestra leaders and movie stars. Many a row has been started by the girl friend making eyes at the orchestra leader or raving about the favorite movie star. And many a girl's feelings have been hurt because the fiance smiles at some pretty girl who is doing a dancing act or whatnot.

Both phenomena are perfectly natural—which is a paradoxical statement, isn't it? Don't squabble with your boy friend again over the matter. Make up your mind that being a man he finds pretty girls attractive and will go on admiring and smiling at them as long as he lives.

H M L. If I were you I would go or write to the nearest clinic and ask if you can be helped. If they cannot help you, they may be able to direct you to someone who can. There are many charitable institutions which help people who need it and who have no money.

H M L has a lame side which cannot be helped without a brace to straighten her back. This would cost in the neighborhood of $200 she says, and she has no money and cannot work because of her lameness.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A DEFENSIVE CRIME

Sometimes a defender can figure out just what the declarer would be doing if it were his turn to lead. Obviously, that should be the one thing that his enemy ought to avoid. On the face of it, anything else at all should be preferred. Yet that kind of defensive crime is perpetrated at hundreds of bridge tables every day by players who act first and think afterward.

In trying to defend against opponents with 60 on score of the rubber game, West started the bidding with 1-No Trump. North called 2-Hearts, East 2-No Trumps and South 3-Clubs.

It seemed too dangerous for West to attempt any further bidding, but he had his chance to defeat the contract and threw it away. He started off with the lead of the heart A which was far from a good lead, and when he saw the J drop, switched to the spade J. He had nothing to gain by that switch. The heart Q was led and when East refused to cover, South tossed a losing diamond. The heart 10 was next led and another diamond discarded. The club J was now finessed and lost to the A and the diamond A cashed. The declarer lost one trick in each suit and made his contract.

Instead of switching to a spade which South would have done in the lead, West should have tried out the diamonds. His partner had raised the no trump bid. His strength obviously was not in clubs or spades, so he undoubtedly held something in diamonds.

After an opening bid of 1-Diamond by West how should the bidding proceed?

Today's Recipes.

HOLIDAY MINCE PIE — One package (nine ounces) dry mince meat, one and one-half cups water, one and one-half cups cooked, sweetened cranberries, pie crust. Break mince meat into pieces. Add water. Place over heat and stir until all lumps are thoroughly broken up. Bring to brisk boil; continue boiling for three minutes. Allow to cool. Combine prepared mince meat and cooked sweetened cranberries. Place in nine-inch pie plate lined with pastry. Place one-half inch strips of pastry over top to form lattice work. Bake 35 minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees F.)

My Neighbor Says:

Do not fry food in fat that is bubbling. All fat should be without bubbles when anything is fried in it. Dough dropped into bubbling fat absorbs it.

Melba toast is made by cutting white bread as thin as possible, then placing slices in a shallow pan so that they will not touch, and bake them in a slow oven until well browned.

To flatten cookies, use the bread side of a knife which has been dipped in cold water.

Daily Care Essential To Pretty Hands

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

HISTORY TELLS us that when the Pharaohs ruled Egypt, it was customary for women's fingernails—and man's, too—to be worn long, pointed and colored a vivid orange, blue or red. Even 'way back in those days, manicuring was considered an important rite, you see, and it has increased in importance ever since.

Modern women's hands, on the whole, are far more presentable than they've ever been in any other era. However, there is one step in nail care that a great many women neglect nowadays, and that is the half-moon of each nail. The cuticle, if neglected, tends to quickly adhere to the nails and to cover the half-moons partly or entirely, but it really is possible to develop perfect half-moons and to retain them if they are given proper care.

The basic factor in preserving attractive half-moons on the nails is that the cuticle must not be given an opportunity to adhere to the nails. Any girl who really wishes attractive fingertips should not be content merely with a weekly manicure. That's a great help, of course, but she must give her nails daily care, too, if she's aiming for perfection.

Give Daily Massage.

Give your cuticle a daily massage. A bit of cotton should be wrapped about the end of an orangewood stick, and then dipped in cuticle or warmed olive oil. Then each nail should be gone over with the oiled tip, working the stick from the nail tip up to the cuticle. Next the orangewood stick should be passed over the base of each nail and the cuticle gently pushed back. This should be repeated over each fingertip every single day. For perseverance is needed to keep the half-moons perfect.

If you haven't time for this daily procedure, you can benefit your fingertips somewhat merely by the manner in which you wash your hands and the way in which you use your hand lotion or cream before retiring each night. When you lather your hands, give them a bit of a massage, rubbing the lather around the cuticle on each nail and gently pushing back the cuticle with your fingertips. After rinsing your hands well, take your towel and go over the cuticle again while drying.

First dry your hands, then rub the towel from the tip of each nail up to its cuticle, and finally follow the line of the cuticle with a firm massage movement. After cleansing the hands in this manner, a good hand lotion or cream should always be used. And when massaging such a lotion in, give your cuticle a final massaging. This will eliminate the possibility of ugly and painful hangnails, and will shape the half-moons most attractively.

Blonde Hair Rinse.

Elsie. The blonde hair rinse to which you refer is composed of the juice of one lemon, one tablespoon of vinegar, one tablespoon of peroxide and a pint of clear water.

Superfluous Hair.

Edna: The superfluous hair bleach to which you refer is composed of two teaspoons of peroxide and half a teaspoon of ordinary household ammonia.

Eyewash.

Jane. The boric acid eyewash is made by dissolving one teaspoon of boric acid in a glass of tepid sterilized water.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Jan. 6.

THIS SHOULD be a very active day with the mind keyed to high levels of achievement, according to the lunar and mutual planetary aspects. Work of a public nature, such as promotion, advertising, publicity or other progressive efforts, born of a highly-stimulated mentality, should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively, progressive and prosperous year, with the mind pitched to highly-constructive work, probably in a public way, through publicity, advertising, promotion or some well-organized commercial pursuit. It is a time for enterprise but not for dubious gambles.

A child born on this day may have much versatility and talent, with a keen, shrewd and penetrating insight and fine organizing ability. However, it should be directed into lines of restraint and a degree of conservatism, as its "tempo" may carry it into dangerous ways, through gambling and speculative instincts.

Use Sour Cream.

When sour cream in cooking is mentioned, many people think only of the cream in their home that becomes sour by accident. Dairy-made sour cream is different in that it is a uniform product made under controlled conditions, and thus its use can be more easily directed and better results insured. Ask your dairy man about it, and learn to enjoy its many uses.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Yah! dot old boonch of soup greens!" Katie inveigled passionately, and this time I did not utter even a mechanical reproof. She has earned defense for Mary through many years of loyalty.

"Me, I like to doomp heem in soup kettle boil heem oop," she went on, and I hurried to the rest of my message.

"In order to take care of her, I am going with her to the apartment in the city Mr. Veruzen has provided for her during the rehearsals and production of my play."

"Me, I know dot already yet." Katie said with her eyes still fixed widely upon me in speculation as to what blow I was about to deal her.

There was no use prolonging the agony, I told myself, and braced myself for the final thrust.

"But you do not know that I have to go with her day after tomorrow, that Mr. Graham is also going, and that Mrs. Bickett and the children will not be home for four or five days after that."

She Is Frightened.

Panic flashed into her eyes, deeply etched lines suddenly appeared in her face and her whole body stiffened as if from a blow.

"But dot means," she began—"dot means Jeem und me stay alone by old vomans for four-five days. No! No! Messis Graham, my darling Messis Graham you no do dot to your Katie. Dot old voman's she keel me."

She was on her knees now before me, her face buried in my skirts, her arms around my knees in an agony of frightened pleading.

I stood up with difficulty and put away her clinging arms.

"I am sorry, Katie," I said frigidly. "I see I was mistaken. I thought you loved Miss Mary and me enough to stand by us for these few days. You had better plan to go away until Mrs. Bickett gets here. I will telephone Mrs. Ticer. I am sure she will be willing to help me out."

FOR A SECOND after I had finished speaking I wondered what would be the result of the ruse I had employed to conquer Katie's rebellion.

Had I overreached the mark? Would her resentment at my proposal that she go home while I sent for Mrs. Ticer lead her to accept my proposal? Or would her loyalty to Mary and me together with her dislike of Mrs. Ticer in her kitchen, suffice to bury her fear of being left alone with my mother-in-law.

For that second she stood at bay, her hands clenched into fists against her breast, her face reddened, her breathing choked and her eyes blazing into mine. Then the fire in her eyes was quenched with the tears which Dicky cynically says Katie always has "on tap." Her hands dropped to her sides, and every line of her face and body suddenly spelled submission.

"Plees don't get dot Meesis Ticer," she pleaded. "Me, I stay, und I do vot you say. Me, I no care vot old vomans do by me. But I no kin stand ven you look at me so disgoosted like, und I 'fraid you no lof' me no more. I no kin stand dot, my Meesis Graham. Tell me vot you vant."

Gusty Temper.

I put my hand on her drooping shoulders and shook her slightly.

"Don't be silly, Katie!" I said briskly, for I knew how best to deal with this lachrymose condition. I have seen it often enough in the years since the girl came to me, raw, inexperienced and tempestuous. The first two qualities have disappeared with the years, but her temper is as gusty as ever.

"Miss Mary and I love you very dearly, even when you let your temper get the better of you. I scold you as I would Junior when he is naughty, but I do not stop loving him, and I do not stop loving you."

"I no deserve ett," she sobbed in an ecstasy of self-humiliation, and I guessed that she was beginning to enjoy her own emotions. "Me, I shoost bad keed, worse dan Junior und Roderick a tousand times. But you shoost tell me vat you vant me to do, und me, I do eet eef eet kills me. Und dot Jeem, I make heem do tings too, eef eet kill heem."

"Don't worry about Jim, Katie," I said with the vision of Jim's stolid dependability comfortingly before me. "He'll do whatever has to be done without any fuss."

"Oh! sure!" She tossed her head loftily. "He no got spunk enuff to make row, dot Jeem."

Jealous of Praise.

Prudently I uttered no other comment upon Jim, knowing full well that while praise of her husband makes her jealous, any criticism of him, if we ever had cause to make any, would bring her raging like a tigress to his defense.

"The one thing I want you to do, Katie," I went on steadily, emphatically, "is to obey Madame Graham cheerfully, no matter what she tells you to do. And I want you to keep your temper and not answer her back or sulk, no matter what she says to you. Can you do that?"

"Sure ting," she agreed. "Me, I kin keep my tongue inside mine mout. But vot I do eef she start licking me?"

I stared at her in amazement. Then I laughed deliberately, injecting a scornful note into the laughter.

Wouldn't Strike Her.

"I never heard anything so ridiculous," I said. "You know Mother Graham never would think of striking you."

"You tink dot," Katie answered stubbornly, "but you no see her ven she mad by me sumtimes. She say, 'Katie you good-for-nuttings. I ought to box your ears.' Und her face so mad und red ven she say eet, I alvays back avay. I so 'fraid."

I suppressed a laugh with difficulty, for whether her fear was real or she was simply dragging it in as an attractive "red herring," I must deal with it as effectively as I could before I left Katie and my mother-in-law together with only Jim as buffer between them.

"Stop a minute and think," I said. "How many times have you heard Madame Graham say that to you in the years since you came to us?"

Her reply was instantaneous.

"Maybe five-six hoondred, maybe tousand times."

My risibles threatened again to be uncontrollable, but I conquered them.

"And how many times has she boxed your ears?" I asked blandly.

Girl's Mother Doesn't Know Man's Family

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I personally have never met the mother of my daughter's fiance. My daughter goes to their house often and his mother has given her many pretty things for her trousseau. Time is drawing nearer to think of the wedding arrangements and I wonder just what will be the best way for the two families to get together to talk over the wedding lists. It would seem so much easier to make sure that every one was satisfied beforehand. Will it be proper, however, for me to invite the bridegroom's mother to our house or ought I to offer to go to see her. I have been hesitating to make any move because I don't know her.

Answer: It is not only proper, but most necessary, that you make an appointment with the mother of the bridegroom. Correctly she should have gone to see you when the engagement was accepted by both families. But this very especial rule is known by comparatively few people and therefore should never be counted against any one who fails to observe it. I am giving it merely to show that it will be entirely correct for you to ask her to come to see you. Write her a note telling her that you want to talk over the list and other arrangements for the wedding. You may ask her to come in the evening if there is any reason for choosing this hour, otherwise afternoon would be better. If I were you I would ask her to come in for a cup of tea—say four o'clock and ask her to name the earliest day convenient to her.

Keep apples in a cool cellar. If you want them to last until spring, wrap them in paper. It takes a little time to do this, but it makes it possible for you to have perfectly sound, solid fruit up to March or April. Use newspapers and cut out all the square pieces you will need before you begin.

LIGHTHORSE HARRY'S GOOD, TOO!

McLemore's Big Help? to Pro Star In Victory Over Crosby. Vines.

By HENRY McLEMORE

HOLLYWOOD—(UP)—Until I had "Lighthorse Harry" Cooper for a golf partner I had always imagined that, for sheer comfort, nothing could equal a mother's touch on a baby's fevered brow or two hours extra sleep on a frosty morning.

Harry Cooper

But now that I have played with Harry I know that I was wrong, and that all other forms of comfort are downright hardships compared to watching him belabor the pocketbooks of his (and my) opposition with pars, eagles, and birdies.

Harry and I played the formidable amateur team of Bing Crosby and Ellsworth Vines at Lakeside yesterday, but despite their best ball of 34 we had no trouble whatsoever in beating them.

Look at OUR outgoing nine:

Par	4	5	3	5	4	3	4	4	3	35
Cooper	4	4	2	5	4	2	3	4	4	32
McLemore	6	7	3	8	6	5	6	6	4	51

Take the best part of Harry's card and the best part of mine and what do we have? Just a 32 that's all. Plenty good enough to win many of the big tournaments.

Cooper was very pleased with our smooth teamwork, too, because as we walked to the tenth tee I heard him say to Crosby:

"That McLemore is quite a help, you know. He lit me a cigarette on the third hole, and then came through on the seventh with a stick of gum."

COMING from a man who has been the lowest scorer in American golf for five years, that made me feel pretty good.

Something happened to me on the back nine and my game went to pieces a bit. And it was then, when I began to wobble, that Cooper became such a comfort to me. Take the eleventh hole, for example.

I foolishly played an explosion shot off the tee, and followed it with an iron shot that struck a tree and bounced directly backwards. As I was then lying three, and was some 15 yards farther from the hole than when I started, I picked and called to Cooper that he would have to "carry" me on this one hole.

Not a bit shaken by the responsibility, Cooper banged a tremendous drive, laid a three iron stone dead, and kicked in his putt for a winning birdie. I got back on my game on the par three twelfth and did my bit by bagging a sound five and bringing Harry a cup of iced water from a nearby fountain.

But my touch deserted me on the long thirteenth and when I still was short of the women's tee after three shots, I again picked up.

FROM there on in it was Cooper against Vines and Crosby, with all bets at stake. To Harry's everlasting credit he didn't say one word of criticism when I sent my caddy and bags into the clubhouse. Nor did he find fault when I found it too hot out in the fairway (probably because I am accustomed to walking under the shade of the trees when I play) and decided to follow the match from the cool of the bushes along the edge of the fairways.

It was not until Harry had ran down a 20-foot putt on the final green to win the match that I again offered him any aid. I then volunteered to run into the pro shop and get change for the bills that Vines and Crosby needed to pay off Harry and me.

Bing and Ellsworth took their defeat by Cooper and myself in splendid spirit and suggested a return match. I said I didn't know whether I would be able to play again but Crosby said that would be all right —that he and Vines would telephone me the result and send me my winnings by postal money order.

Now what do you reckon he could have meant by that?

THE PASS MASTER: Slingin' Sam's life story.

RIVAL COACH SENT BAUGH TO T. C. U.

(Not since the days of Red Grange, the Gallopin' Ghost, has a football player so completely captured fandom as has Sam Adrian Baugh, the former Texas Christian university star whose passing and kicking gave the Washington Redskins the professional title. Here is the first of a series of three stories taking you behind the scenes in the life of the raw-boned Texan.)

GREAT football players, they say, are born.

If so, date this saga of the nation's current football idol back to March 17, 1914. On that day, in a Bell county farm deep in Texas, a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Baugh—a little fellow they christened Sam Adrian. It was a nice name—one the sports writers 20 years later were to twist into Slingin' Sam, Sweet Slinger, etc.

Tiny hands flailed around in that farmhouse cradle, hands that later were to develop into hamlike hooks that tossed footballs like they had never been tossed.

At just about the time Harold (Red) Grange left his Wheaton ice wagon and started an incredible football career at Illinois, Sammy Baugh was having his first look at a football—one of those lightweight, imitation-leather balls you pick up at a notions counter.

The Baughs moved into Temple, Tex. Sammy started to grade school and a football player was in the making.

At the age of 6, Slingin' Sam Baugh started throwing a football through an auto tire, in this manner . . .

Thereby developing a grip that was good for touchdown passes from the time Baugh was in the third grade . . .

And that brought fame when he wore T. C. U.'s uniform, and passed for 39 touchdowns in three varsity years.

Third-graders don't have organized grid leagues, but Sammy and his pals cleared off a vacant lot, got hold of a battered old football and "chose up sides."

"I sort of took a liking to passing back in those kid days and have been working on it since," drawls Baugh. "I started as an end on the Temple high school team.

"One day I threw some passes—and then I played in the backfield."

Only one year did Sammy play at Temple high before his family moved on to Sweetwater, in West Texas.

Coach Ed Henning put Baugh into his Sweetwater backfield "because he was a steady plugger; a boy who did everything right. And believe me, he could pass and kick then."

After his last high school football season, Sammy turned to baseball. He did some third-basing for an Abilene team and Coach Leo (Dutch) Meyer of Texas Christian, varsity baseball mentor and freshman football coach, took his T. C. U. Horned Frogs out to play the Abilene nine.

Meyer, after the baseball series, returned to Fort Worth and told Francis Schmidt, then varsity football coach, that he had seen "a real baseball player" out at Abilene."

"He's this kid Baugh from Sweetwater, understand he also plays football and basketball. Why, he's got the sweetest muscular coordination for a kid his age I've ever seen. I don't know what he can do in football but he could certainly play on my baseball team."

Schmidt hadn't seen Baugh and nothing was done.

Meanwhile, a University of Texas alumnus persuaded Baugh to try Texas, chiefly because he wanted him to play third base under the veteran diamond coach, "Uncle Billy" Disch.

Baugh went to Austin and talked things over with "Uncle Billy."

There was a hitch in plans, however, and Baugh didn't go to Texas. Shortage of students jobs, or something like that.

"Uncle Billy," the grand old man of college baseball, did just what he has done for many other boys. He loaned Sammy Baugh the money to travel on to Fort Worth and enroll at Texas Christian university.

Unknowingly, a man who had spent more than a score of years developing great athletes for the University of Texas sent along to a rival Southwest conference institution one of the greatest college athletes of all times!

Call it a boner if you wish—down here in Texas they set it up as just another act of kindness by a silver-haired, fine old man.

(Tomorrow: Sammy Baugh, the "unknown," enters into a collegiate career finally crowned by thunderous acclaim as the greatest of all forward passers.)

Light-Heavyweight Parade Slated for Armory Tonight

In a veritable light heavyweight parade, six leading wrestlers of that division will appear in three promising bouts at the Armory tonight. On paper, the program looms as one of the most interesting in weeks.

A double main-event offers two bouts, each to go two out of three falls with a time limit of an hour and a half. One brings together Walter Stratton of Leetonia and Frankie Hart of Holland. The other calls for action between Joe Magyar of Hungary and George Wagner, German aspirant to titular honors. The 20-minute opening encounter involves Joe Wheeler, Cleveland, and Joe Wolf, Columbus.

The Stratton-Hart imbroglio is outstanding. Here are brought together the strong, persistent ex-weight lifter and the former Holland fisherman. Both are well-versed in the arts of wrestling. Both have enthusiastic followers and should produce a clean, hard-fought match.

GEORGE WAGNER

Magyar, following in the steps of his predecessor, Bert Rubi, bodes a tough evening for the slashing Teuton, Wagner. The small country of Hungary has been long famous for its athletes and none, perhaps, have enjoyed as much success on the mat as Magyar. Barring, of course, Rubi himself.

The Wheeler-Wolf engagement should be better than average. The latter is well-known for dishing it out and the former just as well remembered for his ability to forsake clean tactics when his opponent gets a little too tough.

Fielding's on 'Spot'

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

FIELDING H. Yost, who has been accused of exercising too much authority in football matters at the University of Michigan, is trying to save himself from the same fate which recently befell Harry Kipke, it seems.

The many political influences in the alumni organization have Yost on the jump. it is reflected in the talk to resume athletic relations with Notre Dame.

Politicians have demanded that Michigan include Notre Dame on future football schedules, and Yost immediately issued a statement that an attempt would be made to renew the rivalry.

FIELDING H. YOST

But Yost has made no mention of the desire to schedule a game to Elmer Layden.

Perhaps Yost figures that all this talk about a Notre Dame game will eventually die out, and make it unnecessary for Michigan to meet the Irish as the "wolves" now demand.

PETE LATZO presents a pathetic case. It wasn't very many years ago that Latzo was a champion. Now he is a WPA worker in a little New Jersey city. He was the beneficiary of a boxing show staged in Scranton, Pa., recently.

Whether it means anything or not, we don't know, but Bill De Correvont, Chicago high school grid sensation, requested registrational particulars the other day in a letter to the registrar of the University of Wisconsin.

Unless they experience too many "off" night, Purdue's Boilermakers will probably win the Big Ten cage championship. At least, they look like good bets at this writing. They have won eight straight pre-season contests, averaging 58.6 points a game.

SPORTS Illustrated struck a new note in its January issue. Instead of presenting the outstanding golf achievements of the year as it has in the past, it offers a few "Worsts of the Year." Here they are:

Worst prediction of the year was undoubtedly that made by dapper Gene Sarazen, who predicted that 292 at Oakland Hills would be good enough to win. Guldahl shot 281.

Worst shot of the year was probably that made by Chick Evans in his quarter-final match with Johnny Fischer at Alderwood. With the match even and his ball lying only a short chip from the cup, Evans looked up, barely made the green, took three putts to lose the hole after it had appeared he had it won.

Worst claptrap of the year was that which accompanied the speculation upon, and discovery of, California's mystery golfer Laverne Moore, alias John Montague. Undoubtedly a fine golfer, perhaps a great one, Montague's prowess was ridiculously exaggerated by a tongue-in-cheek press.

Worst Gallery of 1937 was that milling mob of 12,000 curiosity seekers who followed Montague, Babe Ruth, Babe Didrikson, and Sylva Annenberg at Fresh Meadow. The exhibition, promoted for charity by Bill Corum, had to be called at the ninth hole because (a) the match had already taken over two and a half hours; (b) most of the gallery had seldom been away from Broadway except to go to Belmont park, hence were in constant danger of getting hit; (c) balls were stolen after nearly every shot; (d) Ruth was two up on Montague; so was Miss Didrikson.

Worst break was probably that which washed out Sam Snead's miraculous 65 in the Metropolitan open championship: a heavy rain which rendered the course virtually unplayable after Snead had finished. The score was cancelled; Snead finished second instead of first.

Worst disappointment of 1937 was the showing of America's leading professionals in the British open champion after they had upset precedent by winning the Ryder Cup matches on foreign soil. First American Ryder Cupper to finish was in fifth place: Byron Nelson.

Topples Illinois

Indiana Serves Notice on Big Ten Foes by Trimming Favorite, 51 to 46.

By WILLIAM WEEKES

CHICAGO—(AP)—Indiana's Hoosiers have declared themselves in as contenders for the Big Ten basketball title—by knocking off the Illinois half of the defending championship combination.

The Hoosiers made their declaration last night on their own floor with a 51 to 46 triumph over the Illini in a battle that used up an extra period. The engagement was the first in conference championship warfare this season for both teams and left Indiana tied with Northwestern at the top of a skeleton standing.

Indiana led by 22 to 16 at the intermission, but the Illinois fast-break offense clicked at the start of the second period for a 41 to 34 advantage. The Hoosiers came right back to tie it up at 44-all at the end of regulation time. Julie Andres and Bill Johnson contributed 18 points apiece to Indiana's victorious team.

Reserves Stage Spirited Battle for Vacant Berth

THE battle for the only position to be vacated by mid-graduation on the Mansfield high school court club is now under way as the Tygers prepare for their first 1938 game with Parma of Cleveland on the home boards Friday night.

Freddy Lewis, who has been a valuable member of the last two Tyger squads, will not make any further appearances with the high school quintet.

Although eligible for a few more games, Lewis, who will graduate this month, has quit the squad, and has already joined the Elks club of the City Class A league.

The identity of the player to take Lewis' place has not been revealed, but a good old-fashioned free-for-all is being staged in the Tyger gym this week by the reserves for the berth.

Jack Dugger and Dave Shelly are probably the leading candidates, but there are others who are figuring very prominently in the current battle.

Dugger has made great progress since the start of the season, and if he continues to show improvement, he will probably get the call, according to Coach Russ Murphy.

Murphy sent the Tygers through a spirited workout yesterday in preparation for the Parma invasion.

LUTHERANS ADD SIXTH

Leaders Keep Record Clean By Turning Back B'Nai Jacob, 51-11.

The First Lutheran cagers romped at the expense of another Church Class B league foe at the Y. M. C. A. last night when they routed the B'Nai Jacobs, 51 to 11, to hang up their sixth straight win.

Holding their foe scoreless in the first period and permitting only two points in the second quarter, the league leaders held a 24 to 2 lead at the intermission.

R. Stewart, with 13 points; Slaughbaugh, 12, and Zeigler, 10, led the Lutheran scoring.

The second place Park Avenue Baptists encountered little trouble to defeat St. Johns, 35 to 18, after leading 16 to 6 at the half. Rayburn tallied 16 points for the Baptists, and B. Condon contributed 13.

First Presbyterian eked out a 17 to 16 victory over South Main in the closest game on the hill, and Mayflower turned back Central M. E., 29 to 12.

Although Bushman tallied 18 points for First M. E., the Methodists bowed to First Christian, 34 to 29. Nixon and Hammett scoring 12 points apiece for the winner.

TOP TEAMS MEET TESTS

Ontario and Butler Return to Action Against Strong Foes Friday.

The defending championship Ontario Warriors and dangerous Butler Bulldogs, deadlocked for first place in the hectic Richland county basketball league race, don't tackle each other Friday night as the loop swings back into action, but the outcome of their respective battles may have important bearings on the title race.

Coach Orville Kibler's athletics face the Madison Rams on the Madison court, while the Bulldogs move into Lexington for a melee with the Minutemen.

Both Undefeated.

Ontario and Butler are undefeated, but the Bulldogs have chalked up one more triumph. The defending champs have scored three straight victories and Butler four.

The Ontarioans, one of the pre-season favorites to annex this year's title, rode along with ease through two games, but in their last appearance ran into plenty of trouble in edging the Rams by a two-point margin, and Friday's meeting is expected to develop into a hot affair.

The green-clad Rams had an up-and-down season, starting off in splendid fashion by walloping Bellville, but a week later dropped one to Butler, and after the Ontario setback, encountered trouble in disposing of Union.

Although the Rams have been unable to click with regularity, the club will probably be in top form for Ontario.

Butler Favored.

The sharpshooting Butler club will enter the Lexington game as favorites, but may run into unexpected trouble from Richard Rule and company. The Minutemen in their last tilt smothered the Union club.

Ontario will play at Union Saturday night.

The Richland Rifle and Pistol club will meet the Galion club in a match at the Mansfield club's new range, 26 South Main street, Sunday afternoon.

Dodgers Ready to Kick Back?

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, favorite football of the National league, on and off the diamond, may be getting ready to kick back.

It's all in the uncertain stage and the Doubting Thomases will have to be shown before they'll believe the various opposed interests who share the Dodgers' ownership ever can be made to agree, but there's no longer any question that something is afoot.

Larry MacPhail, the red-thatched go-getter who gained fame by introducing night baseball to the major leagues and helping put the Cincinnati Reds back on their feet, settled that last night with a statement that revealed several significant facts.

He had not applied for a job but the Dodgers had sought him out, he said. That was item No. 1. The second was that he believed the conferences had at least made a start toward bringing the various interests closer together. No. 3 was that MacPhail wouldn't consider anything less than full authority to carry out a concrete and adequately financed program for the betterment of the club.

It has been generally understood that the main reason why the Dodgers have continued to turn out second-division ball clubs without much apparent effort to salve their loyal supporters was the lack of agreement among the owners. President Stephen W. McKeever, the Ebbets heirs and a Brooklyn bank which has several fingers in the financial pie, never have been able to make their views coincide for long.

That explains why Casey Stengel was ousted as manager although he received a year's salary for not working, and the recent "dropping" of John Gorman as business manager, which left the Dodgers with no one to arrange a spring-training schedule.

MacPhail said he would not consider Gorman's old job or one like that held by Bob Quinn, former general manager, and that the club owners knew it.

Place O. K. on Rules Changes

Coaches Believe Offense Will Be Helped.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Football coaches from all sections of America hauled out the "O. K." stamp today and applied it to the three major decisions of the National Football Rules committee in its week-end deliberations at Edgewater Park, Miss.

Most of them gave unqualified praise to the change allowing three incomplete forward passes over the goal line without a touchback being ruled and the ball going to the other team. They also endorsed the decision to bring the ball in 15 yards from the sideline instead of 10 on out-of-bounds plays. A few, however, regretted the decision not to permit forward passing from any point back of the line of scrimmage.

Lou Little of Columbia, chairman of the Coaches Rules committee who took part in the national committee's discussions, was an enthusiastic spokesman for his colleagues.

"The rules change that allows three incomplete forward passes to be thrown into the end zone in the same series of downs without the loss of the ball will be a great help to the offense near the goal line," he said. "This is one of the best innovations that has come into football in a long time. Now the defense must stay back and guard against a possible second or third pass. Thus all phases of attack will be greatly improved and there should be more scoring."

Whip Dayton, Miami Quints In Buckeye Games.

Ohio Wesleyan and the University of Cincinnati emerged from their initial Buckeye conference cage contests of the season last night on the hapy side of the scoresheets.

Wesleyan won a rousing battle from Dayton by a 38 to 29 count. Center Harry Kirchwehm, tall Wesleyan sharpshooter, and his teammate, Forward Reiser, each accounted for a dozen of the Bishops' points.

The Cincinnati contingent invaded Oxford to hand Miami's Redskins their first defeat of the season, 36 to 34. Forward Iliff looped a goal with the tally at 34-all to give Cincinnati the victory.

ALL ORANGE TO ATTEND

Galento's Match With Massera to Pull 'em Out Tonight.

ORANGE, N. J. —(AP)— Tony Galento, the boisterous heavyweight, will pull on the red mittens for a 10-round go at Charlie Massera tonight, an event that will yank Orange burghers away from their firesides to the Orange armory.

It takes more than an ordinary fighter to pry the local citizenry away from the hearth on a winter night or to bring New York's followers of the fancy across the river. And it's not Massera, a veteran trial horse, who's the attraction. It's old Tony himself, an almost unbelievable figure, who is something to see—in action or out.

SUTHERLAND TO LEAVE SUPREME COURT JAN. 18

Gives Roosevelt 2nd Chance to Appoint Member to High U. S. Tribunal.

clared, however, that "the general court situation, as it existed last year, has already been changed. I think that relieved any necessity for reviving the matter at all."

In a letter which was sent to the White House this morning, the justice said:

"My Dear Mr. President:

"Having reached the age of more than 75 years, and having held my commission as associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, and served in that court, for 15 years, and thus being eligible for retirement under the Sumners act of March 1, 1937, entitled 'An act to provide for the retirement of justices of the supreme court,' I desire to avail myself of the rights, privileges and judicial service specified in that act, and to that end I hereby retire from regular active service on the bench, this retirement to be effective on and after Tuesday, the eighteenth day of January, 1938."

Declines to Comment.

Justice Sutherland refused to make any comment on his retirement. Friends said, however, that his action was based largely on his age. He has no serious ailment. They said he has reached the period when he feels that he cannot do his full share of court work without too much of a strain and that he is not willing to remain on the bench when he feels that he cannot carry his full burden of the work.

The justice was expected to remain in Washington indefinitely and make himself available for such work on the lower federal courts as may be agreeable to him. Such assignments by the chief justice are authorized by the retirement act and Van DeVanter now is serving on a New York federal court.

The retirement of Sutherland gives President Roosevelt his second opportunity to make an appointment to the supreme court.

His first came when Justice Willis Van DeVanter retired last spring. To succeed Van DeVanter Mr. Roosevelt named Senator Hugo L. Black of Alabama. Disclosure that Black once had been affiliated with the Ku Klux Klan aroused a storm of controversy which lasted throughout the summer and proved one of the highlights of the 1937 battle over the president's move to increase the size of the supreme court.

Born In England.

Justice Sutherland was the first supreme court justice born on foreign soil of alien parents since 1806 and the fourth in history. He was born in Buckingham, England, March 25, 1862 but was brought to this country when 15 months old. His father became an American citizen in 1869.

Sutherland was appointed an associate justice in 1922 by President Harding after being defeated for re-election as Republican senator from Utah by Senator William H. King, a Democrat and his former law partner.

Since the inauguration of President Roosevelt in 1933, the justice was one of the most consistent opponents of administration legislation on the bench. He was one of a group of four generally described as "conservative."

He ranked next to Chief Justice Hughes as the leading writer of opinions on administration litigation. Up to the beginning of the current term Hughes had written seven and Sutherland six, three of them were against the administration and three in its favor.

Those against held that the Guffey act to regulate the soft coal industry violated state rights, that President Roosevelt had no right to discharge the late William E. Humphrey as a member of the Federal Trade commission, and that the securities commission could not compel J. Edward Jones, New York securities dealer, to testify concerning an issue he had registered with the commission and then withdrawn.

Upheld Embargo.

Those for the administration held the 1934 arms embargo act that authorized President Roosevelt to forbid the sale of munitions in this country for use in the Chaco war between Bolivia and Paraguay, a three-cents per pound tax on the processing of coconut oil imported from the Philippines and the assignment by the Soviet government to the United States of $8,000,000 of assets in this country held by Russian corporations which had been taken over by the Soviet.

In addition, Sutherland wrote dissents to majority opinions holding that the Wagner labor relations act applied to the Associated Press and sustaining the Washington state law fixing minimum wages for women. The latter decision reversed a ruling in 1923 holding unconstitutional a similar law for the District of Columbia. Sutherland had written the majority opinion in that case.

Up to the beginning of the October 1937 term, the justice had voted against the administration in its litigation 12 times and for it once. The exception was the Tennessee Valley authority decision which upheld a contract for sale of transmission lines and did not pass on constitutionality of the act.

Since that October, however, he was voted in line with the administration on every case except unemployment insurance provisions of the social security act, the application of the Wagner act to the Associated Press and to manufacturing companies, and the decision holding that the congressional resolution abrogating payment of obligations in gold applied to contracts for bullion as well as for coin.

In other cases he lined up with the administration, including the unanimous decision that the Wagner act applied to an interstate bus company.

Only last Monday Sutherland delivered the court's unanimous decision holding that private power companies had no legal right to challenge public works administration loans and grants for publicly-owned power plants.

Sutherland's opinions sparkled with quotable material. He liked to express himself in every-day language instead of employing technical legal terms.

Paroled, Prisoners Come Back

T. L. Smith and Warden Boswell

—International Ill. News Photo.

Pledged "on their honor" to return, most of the 554 prisoners in 19 penal camps and penitentiaries in Alabama have returned to their cells after being granted holiday visits to their homes by Gov. Bibb Graves. The policy has been in vogue 10 years and only 1 per cent have not failed to keep their promise. T. L. Smith, inmate of Kilby prison at Montgomery, is pictured turning over to Warden Frank Boswell, right, $360 derived from sale of his home.

FUNERAL SERVICES TOMORROW FOR PIONEER BANDSMAN, GROCER

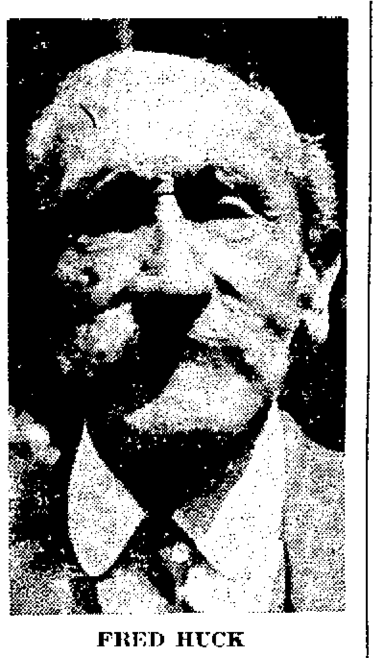
Funeral services for Fred Huck, 88, of 118 South Adams street, retired grocer and a former active figure in Mansfield band circles, who died in General hospital Monday following an illness of four weeks, will be held at the Wappner funeral home at 1 p. m. Thursday with Rev. Paul Saleste of the St. John's Evangelical church officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

A pioneer in the grocery business in Mansfield, Mr. Huck, a native of Germany, retired 27 years ago. He opened his first store in the city on Main street opposite Central park.

Mr. Huck later moved his business to a place next door to the Purdy building, then to Arch and Adams street and erected his own building at 117 South Adams street where his store was located at the time of his retirement.

Mr. Huck was active in civic affairs, and he and Ludwig Wolfe were two of the organizers of the old Mansfield city band. In addition to taking an active part in organization, he played a cornet in the band.

His last public appearance in music was made two years ago when he played at the old Mansfield band reunion at G. B. U. park.



FRED HUCK

A resident of the city 70 years, Mr. Huck is survived by two sons, William of Mansfield and Fred jr., of Phoenix, Ariz., and 10 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Davey's Probe 'Dead', Senate Speeds 'Graft' Inquiry

HOUSE VOTES DOWN REQUEST BY GOVERNOR

Proposal to Investigate All Departments Beaten; Gives Old Probe New Impetus.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The Ohio senate's graft-hunting expedition plowed on today, encouraged by refusal of the house of representatives to interfere with the inquiry.

The special investigating committee called in Alfred Humphrey, chief of the enforcement division in the liquor department after receiving testimony that eight highway department employes drew pay from the state while working two to six weeks in Franklin county Democratic headquarters.

Despite the urging of Gov. Martin L. Davey, who declared "anyone would be supremely stupid" to think that the senate investigation "would be fair or honest," the house defeated his proposal to replace it with another inuiry.

Shy Two Votes.

As the 31 Republican members refrained from voting so that "you Democrats can fight it out among yourselves," the house balloted 68 yes to 13 no on the governor's bill. Seventy votes were needed for approval.

Earlier, the house refused to add to the bill an emergency clause which would have made it effective immediately, and cut from $100,000 to $50,000 the appropriation proposed for the nine-member committee of investigators.

The committee would have been composed of three senators, three representatives, and three private citizens, as compared with the seven-member senate committee now functioning under domination of the governor's political foes.

The bill can be brought up for reconsideration, provided it is done within the next two legislative days, but leaders expressed doubt it would be passed on reconsideration.

Hits Davey's 'Sincerity.'

Rep. Patrick F. Monahan (D-Cuyahoga) questioned the sincerity of the administration's proposal to investigate "everything and everybody, including some senators."

Monahan then offered an amendment to deprive the governor of the privilege of appointing three of the investigators, and it was rejected.

Rep. Thomas A. Christ (D-Monroe) declared "we as Democrats should want the investigation now being conducted by the senate 'hatchet men' to go on."

"If the government has been run so honestly and innocently as the governor told us last night it has been run," he added, "why worry about an investigation by enemies?"

Republican Floor Leader William M. McCulloch, at whose suggestion the Republicans kept silent in the balloting, said Governor Davey could ask the grand jury now investigating the state parole system to inquire into the administration of all departments.

The house's defeat of the bill surprised observers because that branch of the legislature consistently has supported the administration, and the governor's lieutenants had freely predicted the measure's approval.

Meanwhile the senate gave the house another opportunity to display its sentiment on the senate investigation when it passed and sent to the house a bill carrying $40,000 to finance the inquiry. The measure which also contains $2[illegible] for the parole probe was approved without a vote to spare 19 [illegible]. Administration supporters did not vote.

Governor Davey [illegible] last year a bill that would have appropriated $50,000 for an investigation.

President Sends Message on Budget to Congress; Slash Ordered In Spending.

sented a complete budget, including relief estimates which previously had been left until later. He did so apparently, on the basis of a treasury forecast that business would improve.

"We hope," he said, "that the calendar year 1938 will bring an improvement in business conditions and, therefore, in tax receipts. The treasury, leaning to the conservative side, predicts some improvement over the present level but does not assume in its figures that business in the calendar year 1938 will reach as high a level as in the calendar year 1937."

Mr Roosevelt asked an increase of $34,500,000 to bring national defense spending up to a record peacetime level of $991,300,000 in 1939. His message mentioned $54,847,000 boost in regular defense funds, but part of this difference was offset by allocation of less emergency money for defense next year than in the current period.

Not only did the president abandon his hope for a balanced budget next year, but dwindling revenue forced a jump in the net deficit expected for the year ending June 30, from October's estimate of $695,000,000 to $1,088,129,600. This increase included no new funds for relief spending which Mr Roosevelt conceded might be necessary during the winter.

Seriousness of the revenue slump was reflected by the estimate that this year's receipts would total $6,320,513,000. A year ago, when the president forecast a "laymen's balance" for this year's budget, he estimated revenue at almost a billion higher—$7,23,000,000.

The president made no effort to conceal his disappointment over tax receipts. He told congress the outlook had been changed by the "recent recession in business."

Sees Further Slash.

The chief executive not only sliced almost a billion off the original revenue estimates for this year but said next year's would drop still further—to $5,919,437,000. That, however would be the biggest peace-time revenue in history except for this year's.

Other important features of the budget message, which as usual was read to the two houses of congress by their clerks included:

A recommendation that congress either by legislation or a constitutional amendment provide the chief executive with authority to veto individual items in an appropriation bill without returning the entire measure.

A renewed recommendation that congress enact "at an early date such amendments to the revenue law as will maintain the revenue producing power of the present tax structure while correcting at the same time existing proven inequities."

Proposal to curtail spending on major public works such as highways, river and harbor improvements, flood control, public buildings and reclamation projects because of lessened government income and because "it has been amply demonstrated that they do not provide as much work as do other methods of taking care of the unemployed."

Elopement of Trudie Bennett, 17-year-old daughter of Harry Bennett, personnel director of the Ford Motor company, caused a stir for a day after her disappearance from Michigan State Normal college, Ypsilanti, Mich. First rumors were that she had been abducted. Then it was learned she had eloped to Auburn, Ind., with Russell Hughes, 21, fellow student—and there they married.

Highlights of Roosevelt's Budget Message to Congress

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Pertinent phrases from President Roosevelt's budget message to congress:

We hope that the calendar year 1938 will bring an improvement in business conditions and therefore in tax receipts. The treasury, leaning on the conservative side, predicts some improvement over the present level but does not assume in its figures that business in the calendar year 1938 will reach as high a level as in the calendar year 1937.

Due to world conditions over which this nation has no control, I may find it necessary to request additional appropriations for national defense.

* * *

The economic situation may not improve—and if it does not I expect the approval of congress and the public for additional appropriations if they become necessary to save thousands of American families from dire need.

This year I recommend that such (public works) items be curtailed.

First, because expected government income will be less, and second, because it has been amply demonstrated that they do not provide as much work as do other methods of taking care of the unemployed.

During the first 10 months of the calendar year 1937, business conditions improved materially . . . There was every reason to expect that the revenues for the fiscal year 1939 would be greater . . . The recent recession in business has changed that outlook.

* * *

The most important fact of this budget is the reduction of $539,000,000 in the estimated expenditures for the fiscal year 1939. They amount to $6,869,000,000 compared with estimated expenditures during the current fiscal year of 1938 of $7,408,000,000.

HUNT NUDE PAIR IN MOUNTAINS

Deputies Search For Couple Held Prisoner by Fanatic Near Los Angeles.

Mark wouldn't let them wear clothes because he considered such things sinful, and that most foods also were denied them, so they had been compelled to forage for food, eating nuts, herbs and what they could salvage from garbage cans of a nearby mountain camp.

Mrs Dorothy Silverman another daughter-in-law, heard the mother's story and swore out a complaint against Mark, asserting that he was insane.

Mark's canyon colony the mother said, was located about 30 miles from Los Angeles. She said that she had lost 20 pounds during the four months ordeal before Mark began to notice her condition and decided to turn her loose. He had Joe take her in the automobile to within a block of her looted home and put her out. Joe paid a boy to help her the rest of the way home but she was too weak to walk she said, and had to crawl the block on her hands and knees. Joe then returned to the canyon where he had left his wife with mark as hostage, to guarantee his return.

"They're living in a cave like animals," the mother told the sheriff.

In an affidavit to which she swore in making the insanity complaint, Mrs. Dorothy Silverman related:

For a long time the family had been worried over Mark's strange religious beliefs. Then, that day in September, their worst fears were realized. In the canyon, Mark forced them to shed their "sinful" clothes and to sleep on the bare ground. When the cold winter rains set in, they all huddled together in the cave.

At night, Mark frisked about the canyon stark naked, loudly shouting that he was the redeemer and the world would end on Christmas eve. Eventually that day passed without incident and Mark's faith was shaken. He was crestfallen all day, the elderly woman said, and then he decided to relent.

YEAR PASSES WITH RELIEF STILL PUZZLE

42 Per Cent Decrease Early In '38 Followed by Rapid Increase In Fall.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio went into 1938 with its poor relief problem apparently no nearer solution than it was a year ago

A decrease of 42 per cent in he number of indigents dependent on the public for support made the situation much less acute during the fall, but business recession in the winter brought renewed pleas for aid.

The state government, after washing its hands entirely of relief April 15, reshouldered part of the burden late in December with an appropriation of $1,000,000 and legislation authorizing counties to issue bonds in anticipation of tax surpluses

Gov. Martin L. Davey also asked the legislature to enact a long-term relief program, but no completed action was expected until 1938. The biggest obstacle in its path was a disagreement over how much relief money the state should provide

The present assistance is merely another "stop-gap", such as was in operation when 1936 ended

Current Load Higher.

Relief in 1937 dropped from 113,997 cases (four persons to a case) in January to 62,522 in October, but relief experts said the current load probably was much higher.

Roy L. Wildermuth, chairman of the former state relief commission, who has continued to maintain a skeletonized staff said that $11,000,000 was spent for relief in the first six months, $6,500,000 coming from the state funds Ohio paid $22,000,000 of the $27,000,000 relief bill in 1936.

When the relief law expired in April, the problem was forced on the municipalities and townships, which began to prune the lists of indigent sharply because of the lack of funds

Widespread "riots and bloodshed" which some proponents of state relief aid had predicted failed to materialize, but the situation did not lack drama.

Nearly 100 members of the Ohio Workers' Alliance marched on the State House, demanding enactment of a $50,000 relief program.

Dissatisfied with their reception, they staged a sit-down demonstration in the office of Gov. Martin L. Davey. After two days they were ejected by sheriff's deputies in a vigorous melee Five sit-downers were arrested.

Charges Waste.

The speed with which relief rolls were cut after state aid was withdrawn led Governor Davey to contend that relief had been administered wastefully

In estimating 1938 needs at $15,000,000, the governor asked political subdivisions to put up $7,500,000. Representatives of municipalities, however, estimated their requirements at $16,000,000 and asked the state to contribute $12,000,000.

Meanwhile, the number of persons on Works Progress Administration projects had decreased from $140,649 in December, 1936, to 88,801 as of Dec. 8, 1937 WPA officials said there was not much likelihood of employment being increased before June 30, when the WPA is scheduled to end.

WPA expenditures in Ohio in 1937 were estimated at $101,728,000, compared with $142,305,000 in 1936.

Entries must contain no less than 400 words and no more than 600, and must be in the hands of the local chairman not later than midnight, Feb. 12.

URGES SLASH

Professor Sees Reduction In Costs as Recovery Aid.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J —(UP)— Prof. O. M. W. Sprague, Harvard University economist and president of the American Economic association, has advocated a general reduction in prices to expand demand in the capital industries, with a corresponding reduction in the wages of skilled workers.

Such a program, Sprague declared in a speech before a joint session of the American Economic association and the American Statistical association, would hasten business recovery.

He said that further expansion in the capital goods industries could not take place, however, unless it was supported by increased employment in the heavy industries.

THEATER

FRANSCISCA GAAL, the little Hungarian actress who makes her American debut in "The Buccaneer" with Fredric March, comes to the American screen under most auspicious circumstances, for she is a Cecil B DeMille "find." DeMille saw her in several European made films and for him she combined the qualities possessed by Helen Hayes, Mary Pickford and Elizabeth Bergner—which seems a large order. She is the youngest of 13 children and is so important to the Hungarian motion pictures that the government has decorated her for notable contributions. She so impressed Ferenc Molnar, the Hungarian playwright, that he wrote "The Good Fairy" and "Violet" especially for her talents. She has made eight films abroad. Her American career will depend largely upon the public's reaction to her in "Buccaneer."

Howard-Blondell.

Soon after Joan Blondell waged her one-woman battle for better picture material, her company loaned her to Walter Wanger for a United Artists production, with the result that she is co-starred with Leslie Howard in "Stand-In," which is booked for the Ohio the last half of the week. It is a rollicking story of a banking expert in Hollywood, intent on figures, but not the kind that abound in the film city. The petite star plays the title role, the stand-in of an exotic star. Clarence Buddington Kelland wrote the story which appeared in Saturday Evening Post. Alan Mowbray and Humphry Bogart are the leading supporting players in this romantic comedy of picture making and finances.

Boles Sings Again.

Despite his insisting on a contract whereby he would not have to sing in pictures, John Boles is singing again in "Fight For Your Lady," the current Madison attraction Probably he relented because the hero is a singer, and of course singers must sing. Ida Lupino is the lady for whom he fights, with Margot Grahame providing plenty of extra-curricular worries as his gold-digging fiancee. Jack Oakie as the manager of a wrestler who refuses to "lay down," provides a nice comedy touch. The scenes shift from London to Budapest. The feature is being shown today and Thursday.

Masculine Stars.

A great favorite of yesterday and a great favorite of today head the features at the Majestic. One is Clive Brook, English actor who, when he was in American films, was a great favorite of audiences here. For several years he has confined his screen work to English films because he prefers living in England. In "Action for Slander" he has the role of a man who is unjustly accused but whose lips are sealed. Clark Gable, the reigning favorite, and recently voted the No. 1 attraction of the screen, despite the fact that Shirley Temple brings in the most money, is starred with Loretta Young in "Call of The Wild," This is a re-issue of the popular Jack London story.

Wanger's Versatility.

Walter Wanger, producer of "You Only Live Once," current at the Ritz, is one of the important producers in Hollywood who has forged to the top in the last year or so, although he has been identified with picture making for a long time. He is distinguished by a great versatility. Within a few months he made the spectacular "Walter Wanger Vogues," a musical film, and the starkly dramatic "You Only Live Once," in which Sylvia Sidney and Henry Fonda are co-starred. His romantic comedies are as expertly done as his musicales and dramas. "Riding On Air," a Joe E. Brown comedy, with Florence Rice and Guy Kibbee, is the second feature at the Ritz.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD
Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts
The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.
Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion. Sold everywhere. (c) Bell & Co. 1937.

SPECULATES ON SELECTION OF NEW JUSTICE

Washington Hears Solicitor General Reed, Minton Might Succeed Sutherland.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Numerous names were mentioned today as official Washington speculated over a possible successor to Justice George Sutherland.

Among them were Solicitor General Stanley Reed of Kentucky and Senator Minton (D.-Ind.). Some reports current at the time of Justice Black's appointment had listed them as the last two excluded from consideration before President Roosevelt made his decision.

Whether they have a top rank at the present time for possible appointment was undetermined, however.

Economist Mentioned.

Some in governmental legal circles said the president might name a woman, or an economist who is not a lawyer. There is no requirement that a justice be a lawyer. The name of Florence E. Allen of Cleveland, a judge of the sixth circuit court of appeals, was mentioned among the women. She holds the highest federal judicial office ever occupied by a woman. The list of others included:

Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general, one of the attorneys who defended the Wagner labor relations and the social security acts in arguments before the tribunal.

Felix Frankfurter, professor in the Harvard law school.

James M. Landis, dean of the Harvard law school and former chairman of the securities commission.

Donald R. Richberg, former administrator of the national industrial recovery act and one-time labor lawyer.

Senator Robert F. Wagner (D.-N. Y.), one of the authors of the Wagner labor relations act and leading backer of other administration legislation.

Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago.

Learned Hand of New York, judge of the second circuit court of appeals.

Samuel Rosenman, judge of the New York supreme court and close friend of President Roosevelt.

Ferdinand Pecora, judge of the New York supreme court and former member of the securities commission.

Justice Harold M. Stephens, the District of Columbia court of appeals.

New Council At Galion Organizes; Fund Bill Passed

GALION — Reorganization of city council for the year, the passing of a temporary appropriation ordinance for the first three months of 1938, and other business starting the new year, occupied much of the time at city council's first 1938 meeting Tuesday evening.

With the new president of council, G. M. Badgley in the chair, council elected W. H. Kunkel as vice president, and Kunkel's son, William Kunkel was elected permanent clerk for the term. Council's make-up this year includes two Republicans and five Democrats, a Republican mayor, W. M. King, and a Republican council president, Badgley.

Badgley's committee chairmen appointed for the year are: Rules and Ordinances, Ben Romine; Claims and Finances, F. E. Cook; Streets and Sewers, Harry Volk; Sidewalks and Alleys, Lawrence Neumann; Water, W. H. Kunkel; Electric Light committee, Thomas Maldens; Printing, O. W. Cronenwett; Health, H. L. Volk.

The temporary appropriation ordinance passed for the first three months, totaled $236,460. This was some $7,100 higher than 1937 because of higher fire insurance in the electric light department, for the state unemployment, and for outdoor relief.

Badgley appointed a committee composed of W. H. Kunkel, F. E. Cook and H. L. Volk, to consider remodelling costs for the city building.

SET RITES FOR HEART VICTIM

MILLERSBURG—Funeral services for Mrs. J. S. Miller, 52, of Fredericksburg R. D. 2, will be held at the residence at 10 a. m. Thursday. Rev. Andrew Weaver will officiate and burial will be made in the family cemetery.

Survivors are her husband; three sons, Dan of Fryburg, Amos of Mt. Eaton and Roman of the home, two daughters, Katie and Sarah, both of the home, and four brothers.

RECORD FIGURE

ASHLAND—A record high for seven years was reached here in building activity, and a near record was experienced here in the sale of passenger cars and trucks in 1937, according to reports issued for the year just ended.

According to a report issued by City Engineer E. M. Kerr, 125 permits for the building of new homes and garages were issued in 1937, for a seven year record.

NEW BUCYRUS COUNCIL PASSES ON 1938 APPROPRIATION BILL

BUCYRUS—New city council members, sworn in Tuesday night passed on a temporary appropriation ordinance for current expenses for the city of Bucyrus for 1938 as their first official duty and also heard reports of various city departments for the past year and short talks from past and new city officials.

The new mayor, George T. Dustman, addressed the council, outlining his policies and asking the co-operation of the legislative body of the city. "We are not going to play politics," Mayor Dustman stated in his short address. "We are going to try to equal former records and to better them if possible," he said. Because heads of departments, only recently appointed, had not sufficient time to determine the needs of their departments, Mayor Dutsman asked that council consider the temporary appropriation ordinance submitted by the finance committee which would later be absorbed by the annual appropriation.

Several changes were noted in the appropriation ordinance chief of which was the reduction in hydrant rentals from $20,000 to $12,000. Proper operation of the water revenue fund will permit this reduction, the mayor stated. The total appropriation was for $257,731.14.

The ordinance also privedes a $1,000 appropriation for a survey of the city's sewer system as a step toward correcting flooded basements during heavy rains. Another $1,000 appropriation is made for continuing the purchase and erection of new street marking signs, as recommended by the new administration. Five thousand dollars is appropriated for street lighting, which is a temporary allotment until it can be determined what amount will be necessary to restore white lights in the down town district.

For bond retirement a total of $19,785.78 is provided including $7285.78 interest.

Foster was re-elected president, Cox, vice president and Teeter was retained as clerk of the board.

A temporary appropriation of available funds was made pending receipt of the certificate of funds from the county auditor.

The bid of the Farmers and Citizens State bank was accepted as a depository for school funds for a period of two years at 2½ per cent interest.

Fire and wind storm insurance on all school buildings was authorized to the amount of $250,000.

The board also purchased two carloads of coal of 50 tons each from Laeng's coal yard on a low bid of $5.15 a ton.

GALION PASTOR INSTALLED AS KIWANIS HEAD

State Inaugural Banquet at School Attended by 325 From 122 Clubs.

GALION—Rev. Philip E. Auer was installed governor of Ohio Kiwanis club during the state inaugural banquet Tuesday night at the Junior high school gymnasium here.

A turkey dinner was served by the Dorcas society of First Reformed church, under the direction of Mrs. J. F. Bemiller, to some 325 Kiwanis club members representing the 122 Kiwanis clubs throughout Ohio, and a number of guests.

Rev. Auer, who came to Galion to serve as pastor of Peace Lutheran church in 1924, was born in Marysville, Ohio, Feb. 24, 1898. He has the distinction of being the first of his profession to serve as governor of the Ohio district of Kiwanis. He has been active in Kiwanis work since he came to Galion, and served his local club as president in 1927, and was later elected lieutenant-governor of the Fourth division in 1933. He has served as chairman of the state achievement committee of Ohio Kiwanis and represented the Ohio district as a member of the international committee on achievement.

President Presides.

The banquet program was presided over by C. L. Morkel, president of the Galion club, and opened with the singing of "America," and invocation by Rev. R. R. Elliker, pastor of First Reformed church of Galion. Salutation was given by Galion's Immediate Past President Herman Ricker, and songs were led by Willis B. Edmund of Akron, chairman of the Ohio district music committee.

During the dinner music was furnished by a Galion instrumental trio composed of Kathryn Thayer, Charles Line and Richard Horn. The program following which had been arranged by George James included a feature by Mary Jean McManes, dancer; trumpet trio selections by Rosalind Kelly, Fred Myers and W. F. VonBrock, with Mrs. F. E. Firestone at the piano; songs by a quartet composed of Lowell and Curtis Ness, Richard Patterson and Fred Wilson. After a brief intermission, E. Paul Monroe of Galion, acted as master of ceremonies. Fred C. W. Parker, Chicago, Kiwanis international secretary, gave an address.

The highlight of the evening was the installation of officers by Kiwanis International Trustee William A. Williams of Cleveland. Besides Rev. Auer, the other officers installed were: Immediate past governor, Z. M. Walter, of Wyoming; treasurer, James G. Lewis of Girard; secretary, Pete Land, Akron. Lieutenant governors installed were: O. A message by the new governor, Rev. Auer, was followed with group singing led by Edmund. The closing feature was the appearance of Felix Held, College of Commerce of Ohio State university.

33 EMPLOYES GIVEN AWARDS

Westinghouse Pays $500 For Suggestions For Improving Manufacturing Methods.

Cash awards totaling $500 had been made today to 33 employes of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company for practical suggestions for improvements in manufacturing methods, according to Harold W. Arlin, chairman of the suggestions committee.

The contest which had been in progress for the two weeks opened the way for factory employes to use their initiative in formulating ideas for improvements and to share in the profits resulting from the improvements, Arlin explained.

Topping the list of winners was Melton H. Fyock, 132 Bartley avenue, who was paid $93 for suggesting a means of salvaging control box covers used on refrigerators. The covers were formerly discarded on completion of the assembly of the refrigerator.

Among others who received awards were J. Gale Idle, of 33 Arlington avenue, who received $67 for suggesting an improvement on the Westinghouse thermostat base; Ray Bottorf, 98 Cleveland avenue, $45 for suggesting a rust-resisting process for bolts, and Charles Mertler, 38 Richland avenue, $44 for his idea on improving thermostat terminal leads.

SERIOUS CLASH LOOMS BETWEEN JAPS, POWERS

Demand For Complete Control of International Zone to Have Repercussions.

SHANGHAI—(UP)—A new and serious clash between Japanese and foreign interests was threatened today as Shanghai municipal authorities referred to the United States and British governments a Japanese demand for virtual control of the international settlement.

Foreseeing a clash of interests, the Shanghai municipal government referred the Japanese demands to the United States and Great Britain through the American and British consulates general here.

Settlement authorities planned to make no reply to the Japanese demands until they had received specific reaction from Washington and London.

Hold Radio Stations.

Vigorously pressing an apparent campaign for domination of the foreign settlement, with its gigantic American, British and other foreign interests, the Japanese today took over the operation of all radio stations and installed Japanese censors who will be ready at a moment's notice to exert control over all messages, including foreign ones.

This would mean that the Japanese, operating in the international settlement, would censor American and other foreign newspaper dispatches to their liking.

What bade to be a crisis between Japanese and foreign interests had its origin in an outbreak of bombings and other attacks on Japanese and pro-Japanese Chinese in Shanghai, in the international settlement and the French concession adjoining it.

The delegates protested that bombig incidents showed settlement police to be inefficient. They demanded immediate action against all "anti-Japanese" elements, including newspapers—foreign language newspapers as well as Chinese ones.

They said bluntly that the Japanese might have to take steps to wipe out "anti-Japanese" elements.

Then the delegates demanded that the municipal council place Japanese in controlling positions in the city government.

2 CELEBRATORS GET JAIL TERMS

Pair Pleads Guilty to Charge of Damaging Property New Year Eve, Given 30 Days.

As an aftermath of a New Year eve celebration, two men arraigned in municipal court yesterday on charges of malicious destruction of property were fined and sentenced to 30 days in the county jail.

E. R. Clarke, 26, of 174 South Main street and Joseph Fields, 28, of 82 East Fourth street, were fined $75 and costs each and sentenced to jail when they pleaded guilty to the charge. Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended the fine on condition that they pay damages amounting to $°5 as the result of an altercation in the Nu-way lunch, 214 North Main street.

Neim Shaban, proprietor of the restaurant who filed charges, told the court that three show cases were broken, his glasses smashed and the glass in the front door shattered when the men "got a little rough" in his place of business early New Year's morning.

Clarke and Fields testified that they could not explain just how the altercation started. They said they were willing to pay for the damages.

CUTS INCOME

Production Costs Reduce Farm Cash, U. S. Official Says.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Dr. A. G. Black, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics, has said rising production costs virtually nullified an estimated $580,000,000 increase in the national farm cash income this year.

In a report to Secretary Wallace emphasizing that "burdensome surpluses again loom as a check upon recovery," Black said this year's production would cost farmers about $500,000,000 more than in 1936.

The cash farm income has been estimated at $8,500,000,000 compared with $7,920,000,000 last year.

Let the People Know the Truth.

PROBABLY the best that can be hoped for by the people of Ohio, as an outcome of the scathing denunciation by Governor Davey of a number of state senators, the lieutenant governor and several other men high in public life, is that some actual facts will eventually be disclosed and that this whole disgraceful brawl will finally result in a reasonable amount of dignity and decency being restored to state government.

In the present stage of vituperative utterances from both sides, with charges and counter-charges of all sorts, it is impossible for the average citizen interested in good government to know whom or what to believe.

Instead of the senate investigating committee, now functioning, Governor Davey proposes a committee to be made up of three senators, three members of the house and three to be appointed by the governor, to investigate "everything and everybody," so that everything having to do with state government, politics and lobbying can be "laid bare before the public."

The public is undoubtedly entitled to all the information that might thus be made available.

If there has been the crookedness and graft in connection with operation of various departments of state government that has been charged; if the extent of "contributions" determine the placing of contracts, as has been claimed; if the liquor control and highway departments have been made mere playthings of unscrupulous politicians, as has sometimes been indicated—there is every reason to urge the most complete and far-reaching investigation possible.

If, on the other hand, Governor Davey and his associates in the administration of the state's business are merely being made the victims of an "ugly conspiracy" promoted by political enemies in his own party, and if he is the honorable, upright, conscientious, capable and sober chief executive he claims to be, this should also become known by the people of Ohio at the earliest possible moment—in order that public confidence be restored.

There should be an immediate complete, impartial, nonpartisan investigation of all departments of state government that have been placed under suspicion. The investigating should be done by men whose ability and dependability is unquestioned.

The people of Ohio hire the governor—and all other public employes—to perform certain duties. They have a right to know that this work is being done efficiently and honestly.

Better Service at Lower Cost.

ASHTABULA'S experience in operating city government under a charter, with a city manager as chief executive official, has been such as to encourage continued interest of Mansfield people in that subject—with a view to sometime formulating and adopting a charter for this city and substituting a form of municipal government that gives promise of attaining greater efficiency at lower cost than has been possible under the changing administrations of partisan politics.

Yesterday's talk to a Mansfield civic club by Tom R. Bailey, city solicitor of Ashtabula, was entirely along informative lines and was intended to explain steps toward adoption of a charter and methods of operation thereunder.

Ashtabula is a city comparable in size to Mansfield, with sufficiently similar conditions to make the results of its experiment valuable in planning a course for this city if favorable public sentiment is developed to the point of action.

Under state law there is wide latitude permitted in the provisions of a charter suited to the requirements of the particular city for which it is intended, and the work of preparation usually requires a number of months of work by persons whom the voters choose for this task. Adoption or rejection of the proposed charter then becomes a matter that is submitted to the voters—probably at a regular fall election.

Within the next few months this subject of a charter and a city manager for Mansfield will be up for discussion by a number of civic groups of men and women. If leadership and substantial support could be developed during the early part of the year it would not be impracticable to bring a charter proposal to a vote by the next November election.

This would still leave actual operation under the charter at least a year farther in the future, as election under the charter would not come before the fall of 1939.

Heroic Pictures.

BY RARE good fortune, for himself and his country, Norman Alley, newsreel cameraman, was on the spot when the Panay attack occurred. His achievement, which seemed enterprising and heroic enough when the first news came, is more fully appreciated with the showing of his pictures in this country.

It was, of course, all in the day's work that Mr. Alley should snap to it with his camera, regardless of personal peril, the moment the Japanese planes started bombing and machine-gunning the ship, and should stick to the job until it sank under him, and longer. His reels tell almost the complete story of a historic event. They were insured for $350,000 on their trip to America, but were worth uncounted millions.

For those pictures contained the most convincing of all evidence showing the nature of the attack on the American gunboat and freighters, the heroic conduct of the crew and passengers, and by obvious implication the guilt of the Japanese military authorities responsible for it.

Knowledge of the existence of those films was probably influential in persuading the Japanese government to make prompt atonement for the crime.

That new gas intended to sober a drunk instantly seems to involve too great a waste of the original investment.

Item: "Human beings lived in California twenty thousand years ago." Now, Florida, what have you to say?

Complaint is made that there are no new fairy tales. Possibly the competition has been too great.

It costs money to have some kind of "itis" instead of a common cold.

Could World Powers Bring Japan To Terms?

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON. Can Japan be bottled up, by the world's democratic powers, effectively enough to bring the islanders to terms, without an actual war?

Some folk profess to think so, but it looks doubtful.

War certainly would be of short duration if American, British and French naval forces could be combined against Nippon. And, of course, they would have the co-operation of such sea strength as Holland could muster; likewise Russian support overland. Not to mention China.

But how about Germany and Italy?

SOUNDS DANGEROUS.

The idea is that:

The United States, without butting into Oriental waters, should draw an anti-Japanese line longitudinally across the Pacific, not far east of Hawaii, including the closing of the Panama canal against the mikado, which would be easy enough, militarily speaking, though it probably would involve the sinking of some Japanese would-be blockade runners. And wouldn't that be war?

The anti-Japanese corking up, by the British, French and Dutch of the Strait of Singapore, which also would amount to warfare—undeclared, maybe, but all wars are undeclared these times.

Then, the supposition is, Russia should hop on the Tokio outfit in Manchukuo, where it is none too firmly intrenched anyway.

Meanwhile China still would be strongly anti-Japanesely belligerent.

WOULD IT WORK?

Theoretically it appears to be an overwhelming lineup against the mikado's subjects.

They have a pretty good navy, but nothing to compare with Uncle Sam's, Britain's, France's and even Holland's, united. China is proving to be a mean mouthful already. And Russia?—if it gets into landward operation? Oh, murder!

Japan? Enormously outnumbered! Small resources, and no means of getting any more of them!

If it works that way! But will it?

* * *

NO RELIANCE ON ANY.

Can Uncle Sam, Britain and France be allied?

We have our prejudice against "entangling alliances." We got into the World war and were badly "stung" financially. I doubt that our public opinion would sanction another hook-up with our former "associates," as President Wilson called them.

And can Britain and France tie up with us?

Yes, they want to close the Strait of Singapore against the Japanese.

But they also are desperately jealous of Italy in the Mediterranean. They cannot afford to help us much in the Far East; they are too imminently threatened nearer home.

In short, they want us to attend to Far Eastern waters, not helping us except perfunctorily.

Russia, if it jumps on Japan from behind, expects to be jumped on behind by Germany.

Holland, militarily considered, does not count two cents' worth.

As for ourselves, we have a rather ominous Fascist situation on our own South American east coast to consider.

Do Children Learn To Read, And If Not, Why Not?

By VIVIAN V. HAYNES,
Director of the Country Day School, Mansfield, Ohio.

AN EDITORIAL, "Do Schools Teach How to Read" which appeared in the December 8th issue of The News-Journal was most interesting.

The fact that modern tests are now showing that many high school and college students do not really know how to read may come as a surprise to the general public but this has been known for some time by more alert educators and they have been trying to do something about it.

I agree with you that this is a very serious situation but I disagree, most heartily, with the implication that this lack of reading ability is due to any modern or "progressive" trends in education. The ironical part of the whole thing seems to be that "the little red school house," with its whole emphasis on the mastery of the "three R's," failed to accomplish even that.

There may be many reasons for this. For one thing, the method of teaching reading in many schools would dull any enthusiasm a pupil might have for wanting to read. Does this method sound familiar to you? The class "prepares" the lesson by reading it silently first. Then it is read aloud in class with each pupil having a turn. The most terrible crime a pupil can commit would be to lose the place. Thus a fast reader is penalized and what is worse his interest in reading may be killed. The poor reader is seldom able to "keep the place" anyway. So, the net result is a waste of time for all concerned. Another reason may well be that many an exercise that passed for reading was mere "word calling" with little understanding or comprehension.

THE "little red school house" type of teacher (even though she be housed in a modern building) does not know that reading is not one skill but many and that there are many legitimate kinds of reading. To name a few:

(1) Reading to get the general meaning of a paragraph or story;

(2) Reading for details;

(3) Reading to understand and follow directions;

(4) Reading for pure enjoyment or imagery;

(5) "Skimming" to locate certain facts; etc.

The "progressive" teacher does know this and provides situations and materials to develop ability in the various reading skills and types of reading.

The progressive or modern school does not minimize the importance of reading. It realizes the great possibilities reading and books can play in modern child-development and attempts to utilize psychology in creating a real interest and satisfaction in reading.

The prime essential is a background of experiences and concepts that will give meaning and understanding to words. The progressive school helps to build this background through trips, movies, stories, discussions, and dramatic play with blocks and other materials.

* * *

READING in a modern school fulfils a need in the life of the child as he engages in worth-while activities.

What child is not interested in reading accurately if he is reading a recipe or following directions for making something in which he is interested?

A group of children who have been to the post office, fire department, farm, market, newspaper office, or a museum comes back with new understanding and an enlarged vocabulary which will give more meaning to reading.

Children will want to read a story silently in order to tell it or read it to an audience or to "act it out" afterward. Which is more likely to develop an interest in reading—all the children in a grade reading the same history or geography book, or a class in which the children have done individual research in a variety of books and are able to make a real and different contribution to a group interest or subject?

Let's not be quick to call the newer types of education "superstructural frills." Modern education does not disregard the "three R's. It is seriously attempting to make the tool subjects (so-called) really function as tools which are used to enrich and broaden the life of the children. What we really need is more and better Modern Education.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL—

Jackson and Ickes Gain Attention.

TWO MEN have voiced the administration's opinions in sharp blasts—Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general, and Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior. Now, commentators are puzzled as to which of these two is "favored" by President Roosevelt as his successor.

Jackson, much younger than Ickes, and from the highly desirable state of New York, is presumed to be the heir-designate. He is said to be the choice, or hope, of New Dealers for the 1938 gubernatorial nomination in New York.

Ickes, from Illinois, third most desirable state (the order is New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois) is a more experienced political fighter, but at times he gets on the president's nerves, it has been said. He also has got on other people's nerves. But he is a power among the liberals, Republicans even more so than Democrats, and he is better known than Jackson.

Jackson, nevertheless, has the prospect of increasing vitality, and if he appears in the nation's headlines much more, will begin to be on people's tongues. If he is to be the administration's "trust buster" in fact as well as in speech, then he may become a figure with whom the regular Democrats will have to reckon.

Jackson will be 46 on Feb. 13; Ickes will be 64 on March 15.

CONVENTION SPLIT?

Incidentally, the 1940 Democratic convention may see a terrific contest between the New Dealers and the regulars. If the New Dealers win, the regulars may walk out. That, however, may not have much bearing on the final tally of votes at the election. But it would result in the realignment that everybody predicts—of liberals in one party and conservatives in another.

"BAD" REPORT ON A. T. & T.

There are rumors of a report, to be made probably in February, on the American Telephone & Telegraph company by the Federal Communications commission, which will term A. T. & T. as a "vicious monopoly" and recommending congressional action.

There is no question that it is a monopoly, but the question is asked: What can be done except to bring about government ownership? Which is about the last thing this administration desires at the moment. It has its hands full with government projects now.

Stricter federal supervision, of course, will be recommended. A. T. & T. has got beyond state regulation.

HEAVY LOSS IN CHINA.

British and American losses in China probably will be "total." Governments and corporations are beginning to realize that now. Japan will make it impossible for foreign corporations, other than Japanese, to operate.

More than that, Japan plans to consolidate all the resources of the conquered part of China—an area as large as the United States—and develop those for the exclusive benefit of Japan. Thus, Japan will have tremendous new military resources.

It is in the economic field that Japan suffers uncertainty. The Chinese have destroyed many Japanese investments in China. And the Chinese, even when conquered, can persist in boycotts against Japanese goods.

But, as occurred to Koreans in Korea, the "better Chinese," the independent-thinking Chinese will find that no means of earning a living will be open to them, that schools will be closed to their children. The mass of people will be fed and clothed in return for servitude and predominance over the others.

Timely Editorial

Booze Under Fire.

All in one day recently the newspapers had dispatches tending to implicate the old Demon Rum with human ills. Scientists, sociologists and police officials made out a bad case for him.

From Washington came the report that those addicted to use of alcohol were much more liable to attacks of pneumonia. This was on the authority of the Society of American Bacteriologists, some of whose members have been watching humans and experimenting with rats.

The same day the National Safety Council, which repeatedly has blamed drunkenness for a large percentage of traffic accidents, predicted that the automobile death rate for this year would reach an all-time high. And another dispatch quoted a Chicago legal authority as saying, "Intoxication has in many cases made sex offenders out of persons known as law-abiding citizens. It appears that the use of liquor is responsible for a majority of the crimes."—Detroit News.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON—

Keep That Star Shining . . . That Song Singing!

HOLIDAYS over. Now the old reaction's setting in, isn't it? Plenty easy, ten days ago, to feel like making a new start. Chock-full of brotherly love and new resolutions, weren't you? Fizzing over with spunk and good nature... sure you were going to be a bigger, better, wiser, kinder human—yes?

And now? Well, now a busted fishworm has nothing on you—has it? Wallop all gone... smiles all blotto...don't care whether school keeps or not. And as for doing that job on yourself, making yourself over — to heck with it! You're no good and you know it...make a mess of things all your life...so why kid yourself that you ever can be different?

The after-New Year's Blues—they've got you in their grip—yes? But don't you let them keep you there!

That Christmas day glory, that New Year's hope...they needn't be carted out with the holiday trash. They can stay with you all through the year—if you will.

YOU CAN KEEP THAT STAR SHINING—

YOU CAN KEEP THAT SONG SINGING—

IT'S UP TO YOU!

Enthusiasm isn't something you can't control...one of those come-again-gone-again things.

IT'S SOMETHING YOU CAN MAKE AND KEEP ON TAP FOREVER!

Fundamentally, enthusiasm is a matter of mechanics. You actually, literally, manufacture your own cheerfulness by striking a pose and keeping it. Yes, I know — there may not be much warmth in it at first. You may feel like a grinning ninny. But if you'll keep it up... if you'll deliberately think and say and do the cheerful instead of the dreary thing—you'll find yourself rapidly responding.

YOU CAN'T TALK LOVE WITHOUT SOON FEELING IT.

YOU CAN'T THINK HAPPINESS WITHOUT SOON BEING IT.

YOU CAN'T ACT GOOD LUCK WITHOUT SOON HAVING IT.

This isn't Pollyanna blah-blah... it's sound psychology.

You ARE what you say. You BECOME what you think. And the thing that happens to you is either good luck or bad, according to the way you take it.

No man can write his own ticket, as far as outward circumstances go. Accidents and shocks, losses, disappointments and double-crossings are bound to happen.

You can let the star go out and the song stop on December 26—if you wish. Or you can keep them going all the year—

Christmas over? New Year's done?

NOT ON YOUR LIFE!

CAN THAT GLOOM....QUIT THAT GROUCH...CRAWL BACK INTO YOUR GRIN AND BE YOUR OWN, ALL-YEAR-ROUND SANTA CLAUS!

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

RANK AND FILE

"What," inquires a reader, "exactly is meant by rank and file and where do we get the phrase from?"

"Rank and file" is a military metaphor borrowed for every-day usage in application to the body of members having no official rating in any organization.

We asked an army drill master friend of ours who knows all the answers and he told us that in doughboy parlance, 'rank and file' is an allusion to soldiers of any grade below sergeant, though sometimes even this august personage is included, too.

Two such soldiers, one standing behind the other, make one "file," and two rows of fifty men each, standing one behind another, make fifty "file" or one hundred "rank and file."

There is a right "file" and left "file;" and men may march in single "file" or double "file."

A single line of soldiers drawn up side by side is a "rank." So, we have the expressions "front rank" and "rear rank."

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

GEORGE DU MAURIER called them "parasites of men of genius." And New York has a flock of such fungi. Usually they are fellows of rare charm and anecdotage and make a good fourth at bridge or acceptable dinner partners for the feminine bores.

They winnow their way through flattering their patron saints. It is undeniable that genius, of all the homo-genus, is most susceptible to flattery. Any number, from the calculating industrialist to the reigning author, are pushovers for the art of being sponged upon.

James McNeill Whistler had a sort of stooge upon whom he tried out many witty remarks before ventilating them in the salons. Finley Peter Dunne was left a half million by the publisher Collier, because his sharp observations so amused him. However, Dunne was not a parasite.

Among the most famous "parasites" was, of course, the foppish Harry Lehr. Even today the social leaders, men and women, have their Harry Lehrs who arrange their parties and act as masters of ceremony. Such barnacles ride life topgallant so long as they continue to amuse.

My idea of torture for a starving castaway on the deserted island would be to toss him one of those yard-long menus such as they hand customers at Luchow's or Jaeger's with entries like these: Noodle soup, fresh pig knuckles with sauer kraut and mashed potatoes, hasenpfeffer with kartoffel kloesse, pan fried tenderloin slices, stewed kidneys with bread dumplings, sauerbraten with apple rings, Westphalian ham with cold asparagus tips and cottage cheese, chantilly cream cake, apple strudel, Menster cheese with pumpernickel—but why go on breaking hearts?

Restaurants, with a notable exception or so, have not had success popularizing dishes named for celebrities. Reuben named a number of topheavy sandwiches for columnists and actors, but they had few takers. Among enduring dishes so named are Peach Melba and Toast Melba and Canteloupe Lillian Russell, which was Miss Russell's favorite way of serving it—well chilled with a scoop of ice cream. Peach Melba was concocted when the doctor ordered more sweets for the singer to plump her up and the thin toast antithesis resulted when she was trying desperately to reduce. In England two menu names have survived for many years. Both cheese makers—Stilton and Cheddar.

The "Go West" dictum has left woe in the ranks of theatrical agents on the Rialto. Many used to make from $20,000 and Max Hart made $100,000 a year. Today the agency business is almost entirely in Hollywood. The amateur business has also put a crimp in agency incomes. Most amateurs are hired direct.

Also the master of ceremony seems to be taking a final bow. Many extemporary exploiters of the apt and shining mot have had no trouble migrating from cafe to cafe around the country until heckling also became something of an art. Those such as Joe Lewis, Jack White and Henny Youngman, who could handle ripostes from the side lines, could find a job, but those who were worsted soon found themselves at liberty. As a rule the unfortunates lost their tempers and indulged personalities. That's no go with paying customers.

A new mushroom upshoot in night life is a dim lit and barny boite called La Conga—somewhat remindful of Reisenweber's when it collected the slayouts at Columbus Circle. La Conga believes the dance is everything and puts all its eggs in the orchestra pits, having two crack outfits, one for the rhumba and the other for more civilized swayings.

When Frank Craven hit town recently after a long isolation in California he zoomed a beeline for Lilly the Oysterman, tucked in his napkin and had oysters on the half-shell, then oysters fried and wound up with a steaming bowl of oyster stew. John Golden who watched the devouring from another table finally sent over a half dozen succulent Lynnhavens with this note: "Perhaps you would care to rub these in what you have left of hair?"

CHAPTER XXIII.

If Karen knew that he had had Tommy take her to see Tappen, it she knew of the phone call from England . . . But he would not tell her. Let her continue to think that she had made good through Tommy's help and Brenda's! Philip thought. "If I tell her I helped her, I'll tell her I love her."

He looked at her tenderly. Then "If it is any satisfaction to you, Karen, then know that I am no longer amused. I hate the word, too. It has kicked back at me."

Brenda was removing her make-up when he went to her dressing room.

Standing at the door, Philip said soberly, "I'm going back to New York tonight."

"Have you seen Karen?"

He smiled. "Yes. I've seen her The play can stand on its own feet. Kennedy's a good director. I'm going back. You were great, Brenda."

• • •

Before she could speak, he was gone. Changing quickly into street clothes, she looked for Sid Kennedy, asked about Philip, and was told "He went out like a gust of wind. Wonder what hit him."

She went to Karen's dressing room without knocking and saw her sitting at the dressing table with her head in her arms.

"You and Philip quarreled." It was not a question.

Karen looked up "I told him what I thought of him for not helping me Now I'm sorry, Brenda. Why should he have helped me? Why should he" This is the first time I thought of that. I was nobody. Where is he?"

"He left He went back to New York."

Brenda's heart ached for Karen. But how true it was that in Karen's moment of triumph, with the lusty applause of thousands of hands still in her mind, the girl unhappily in love dominated the talented young actress! As an actress she had won her fight. As a girl in love she had failed And now in the moment that she thought would be the happiest of her life, nothing mattered except that she and Philip had quarreled and he had gone away.

Going to the bench, Brenda sat down beside her and put her arm around her.

"What I have to tell you will make you ashamed, Karen. But you are really not to blame."

Karen turned troubled blue eyes upon her "I am ashamed. I thought it would be wonderful telling him that I've made good through your help and Tommy's. Not his! I told him I had never asked for his help and now I didn't need it. He didn't say anything. He just stood there, looking at me. The way he looked at me—hurt But why should he have helped me? Now I can see his reason for not doing it. I was just another stage-struck girl. He's probably met hundreds. Now we—we aren't even friends"

She had forgotten the play. Before Brenda came, she had been thinking of the way Philip looked at her. There was no thrill that the great ambition of her life has been realized at last —that the applause had been for her—that now she was sitting in her own dressing room

"My dear, stop tormenting yourself," Brenda said kindly. "You've had a grudge against Philip. It seems rather a silly one but perhaps it wasn't. It's quite possible to love a man and hate him a little, too. But no matter how much you hate him now or ever, you'll never be free of him, Karen"

"I'll never forgive myself for talking to him like that." She looked past Brenda at the exact spot where Philip had stood only a little while ago and where he had said he was amused no longer. "I—I think I hurt him I've never hurt any one or anything I loved before And I—I love Philip so much"

Brenda was looking at the large basket of roses Philip had sent. Had Karen hurt him? Only a man who cared could be hurt. A woman lacked the power to hurt a man who cared nothing for her. Her own poise was shaken, her thoughts confused. The Philip who stood in the doorway of her dressing room and said, "I'm going back to New York tonight," was not the worldly, sophisticated Philip Ashley she knew.

"I've made such a mess of everything with my temper and my pride and my love," Karen said.

"And your youth and your innocence"

Karen's eyes were softer. "He's going to be married I know that. He can't belong to me—can't ever belong to me."

• • •

Then Brenda took her shoulders and said. "Look at me and listen to me. Wait until I finish. It was Philip who had Tommy introduce you to Tappen The first part you had in a play was yours before you went to Tappen's office! Tommy felt mean about taking the credit. And when the play failed and Tommy wrote Philip in England about it. Philip got me out of bed with a call from England and said you were to be in his play! He said he didn't care how it was managed but that it had to be managed. Do you remember my telling you that the girl whose place you took had decided to follow a young newspaper man to China and marry him? That's true. She stepped out of the part with a large check from Philip that made it possible for her to go to China! So you see . . . ."

All the time Philip had helped her! She seemed to freeze. And she had said such beastly things to him! Her head swam.

Brenda said, "He didn't want to take the credit for fear Lilyan would misunderstand his interest in you. Then, too, he doesn't think you like him He thinks you dislike him keenly. That's—that's almost comical when you love him so terribly, Karen, so hopelessly.

"But I though this had gone on long enough. I thought you should know that he as been behind every step you've taken. I told you it would make you ashamed. But how were you to know? He was indifferent and though he wasn't under any obligation to help you, any one would. I think, seeing how earnest you were in your ambition. So don't blame yourself. Philip is really to blame."

"But I'll never be able to look him in the face again! Why did he go back? Because of what I said to him? If he'd stayed, at least I could tell him I'm sorry and . . . ."

"Why did he go back? I'd like to know the answer to that, too" She tilted Karen's chin and made her look at her again. "You're an actress. You wanted to be and now you are. Do you remember my telling you that you had dedicated your life to the public? I've played happy parts when I've felt that my heart was going to burst! And tomorrow night you've got to put the same feelings in your part as you put in it tonight and every night for months to come That's being an actress' Change your dress now. I think Craig is waiting." She gave a thought to Craig, waiting. He had waited so long and patiently . . .

Mechanically Karen changed into street clothes and went to the hotel with Brenda and Craig. Philip had helped her' Now there was another question: Why? Why had he helped her?

That night was restless with crazy dreams in which Philip and footlights and hands applauding were idiotically connected. Toward morning she awoke and lay until Brenda came in, lay quietly, just thinking. She would see him in New York and tell him she was sorry and thank him for what he had done for her.

Looking at the new white ceiling in the hotel room, she thought, "Success isn't important. To a man perhaps, but not to a girl in love. Being plain Mrs. like Roxanne is the only important thing—making your world a man one man. I've fought and worked and cried for this little success but I'd give it up for Philip and never think about it again."

Weeks later she was to look back upon that week in Baltimore as the most trying period of her life relieved only by Brenda's kindness. Weeks later she was to wonder how she endured it. Even while on the stage the thought came, "Philip is going to be married on Wednesday." Her struggles and now her triumph became small before that bare and brutal truth

I was ashamed to go to the Doctor!

Little did I realize that most women who have children, suffer from piles (hemorrhoids). My pain became so acute that I was frantic. I couldn't walk, I couldn't sleep, I couldn't sit down Finally I went to my doctor. He told me that I had hemorrhoids, and recommended a suppository to be used privately at home.

If you suffer as I did, let me recommend that you get a $1 00 box of ZIRIL suppositories containing 12 treatments. This wonderful prescription relieves the agony and torture within a few seconds. No narcotics or harmful drugs, easy to use Can be depended upon to give you quick comforting relief from pain.

P.S. ZIRIL also comes as an ointment for the relief of itching, minor bleeding and burning of external or protruding piles.

AWAIT MESSAGE OF PRESIDENT ON U. S. BUDGET

Traders Cautious as Stocks Work Higher In List at Opening.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Stocks worked higher all along the line in today's market, with leaders adding fractions to a point or more.

Activity was only moderate, as traders were cautious pending publication of the president's budget message. Steel, motor, aircraft and copper shares appeared in most demand.

Copper shares were helped by a boost of ⅛ of a cent a pound in the domestic price of the metal and reports of heavy sales in the export market at advanced quotations.

Commodities pointed higher generally with cotton, wheat, corn, rubber, copper, and hides futures all up. Bonds were uneven.

Overnight news, studied in board rooms, included the president's suggestion for conferences between government and industry looking toward production planning, and the statement of Reserve Board Chairman Eccles that restoration of 1936 wage and cost levels would stimulate recovery.

Also noted with mixed feelings was the assertion of "Iron Age" that prospects in the steel industry were "still shrouded in uncertainty," and reports that mill output in the Pittsburgh and Youngstown districts had been revised upward since Monday's preliminary estimate.

No One Ever Kissed Her Good Night

Bad breath is death to romance. And bad breath is frequently caused by constipation. Just as headaches, sleeplessness, weakness can be produced by it, or most skin blemishes aggravated by it!

Dr. F. M. Edwards, during his years of practice, treated hundreds of women for constipation and frequently noted that relief sweetened the breath and improved well-being and vitality. For his treatment he used a purely vegetable compound – Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This laxative is gentle, yet peculiarly effective because it increases the bile flow without shocking the intestinal system.

Help guard against constipation. Use Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. At all druggists, 15¢, 30¢ and 60¢.

PARMELE TELLS OF THREAT CALL

Life In Danger If He Talked, Indicted Official Says.

TOLEDO — (U.P.) — William R. Parmele, indicted Toledo Guaranty Corporation president, charged today anonymous threats had been made to prevent him from testifying before state investigators representing the state securities division.

He said the threat came in an alleged telephone call at the home of his sister in Parma, O., Dec. 26, and that the caller told him "if you value your personal safety you won't talk."

Parmele, here to surrender and furnish bond on four new indictments charging alleged fraud in the operation of the investment house, said a representative of Senator Bernard S. Donovan, Lucas county, also had asked him to testify before a legislative committee on his dealings with the securities division.

UP TO COURT

Approval Sought For $812,000 Sale of Traction Line.

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Federal Judge Paul Jones will be asked Monday to approve sale of the Lake Shore Electric Railway Co., auctioned off by Receiver F. W. Coen, to the Ohio Utilities Finance Co., at $812,015.

This was the only bid submitted for the bankrupt interurban railway system. It was offered by the finance company which holds 70 per cent of the outstanding bonds of the railway line.

LEAVES POST

GALION—A familiar figure around the Big Four depot for the past 20 years has been Andrew W. Schaefer, 70, of Harding Way East. He retired Dec. 31 after working as station baggageman here since Feb. 7, 1919.

For many years prior to his railroad service he worked as a tailor in Galion, and on June 25, 1918 became employed as a machine helper with the Erie railroad company here. He left the Erie on Feb. 5, 1919, and two days later became baggageman at the Big Four station here.

DRAFTS 6-POINT CITY PROGRAM

Hunter, In First Address to Council, Calls For More Police, Firemen.

auditorium. "It is something to consider."

He pleaded with council to give a great deal of consideration to the standardizing of the city's water distribution system by "getting it in better shape for the future."

Touching only lightly on the subject of water development, Hunter said:

"You are all familiar with the plans and specifications now under consideration by the city, and I want to go on record at this time stating that I am heartily in accord with the program.

He warned council that they had a big job ahead of them in revamping the city's sewer system.

"We have been kidding ourselves and the public with the antiquated sewer system that the city outgrew years ago," he added.

Mentions Flooded Cellars.

"The flooded cellar situation has been camouflaged by extensions, but these have been made mostly in new sections of the city and the problem has not been licked where it was needed most."

He pointed out that the entire sewer system needs revamping under a comprehensive plan with consideration for future growth of the city.

"It will cost a gerat deal of money and it cannot all be done at once. However I do believe that if it is submitted to the people of Mansfield for a vote, that general obligation bonds could be floated to carry on the necessary work."

"However," Hunter declared, "I want to say at this time that I am opposed to mortgage revenue bonds issued against the water system or any other system owned by the city of Mansfield at an time."

He advised council that consideration might be given to the purchase of propert on South Walnut street adjacent to the city building for the purpose of erecting a municipal garage where an attendant could be stationed to care for city equipment and effect a savings on motor maintenance.

Backs Park System.

Council was encouraged to keep up the parks system. Hunter said anything in the way of parks improvements was worthy of the consideration of all members of council.

The new mayor touched on the proposed Rowland avenue viaduct and said he hoped "he wasn't stealing any of George Kyle's thunder," but that he would like to see council promote the project for the benefit of the north side of Mansfield. Kyle has frequently advocated that the city erect a viaduct in this section.

Hunter told council that the owner of the property on the proposed site had on his own accord agreed to give the city a clear title to the land should it decide to build the span that would connect the north and west sections of the city.

The mayor's address followed the reorganization of council and the appointment of council committees by Council President Karl P. Troll.

DEMS HEAD FIVE COUNCIL GROUPS

Appointments Show Republican Members to Chairman 2 Important Committees.

majority, however, is Democratic. The other two members are Arthur L. Croak, "freshman" councilman from the Sixth ward, and Lester D. Hunter, Fourth ward.

The water committee chairmanship went to the veteran Republican, C. N. Shultz, Second ward. Serving with him will be James Crum, Republican, at-large member, and Fred Miller, Fifth ward Democrat. This committee, with a Republican majority, will have to handle plans for the extension of the city's water system, one of the major problems in the immediate future.

Of the nine standing committees named by Troll last night, five chairmanships went to Democrats and four to Republicans, in keeping with the political complexion of the nine-member council of which five are Democrats.

However, a check of the appointments shows that the majority of the memberships is six Democratic and three Republican.

Heading the always-important finance committee will be the veteran Miller and serving with him will be Shultz and George Berg, both seasoned councilmen.

Each member of council was given a chairmanship, and each member also got two other committee appointments.

Croak, one of the two council newcomers, was made chairman of the claims committee, and Harry B. Emmons, Democrat, at large, was made chairman of the parks committee.

The list of committee appointments follows:

FINANCE: Miller (D) chairman, Shultz (R) and Berg (D).

STREETS: Berg (D) chairman, Hunter (D) and Shultz (R).

SEWERS. Hunter (D) chairman, Emmons (D) and Kyle (R).

WATER: Shultz (R) chairman, Crum (R) and Miller (D).

UTILITIES: Porch (R) chairman, Croak (D) and Hunter (D).

LIGHT: Crum (R) chairman, Croak (D) and Emmons (D).

SALARIES: Kyle (R), chairman, Miller (D) and Porch (R).

PARKS: Emmons (D), chairman, Porch (R) and Kyle (R).

CLAIMS: Croak (D) chairman, Crum (R) and Berg (D).

As agreed on at a Democratic caucus last week, George Berg was elected president pro tem, and William J. Beer was re-elected clerk for the fourth time.

URGES ACTION ON GAMBLING BILLS

Cuyahoga Solon Wants License Law Enacted Soon.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Rep. Sydney A. Hesse (D-Cuyahoga) demanded today that the house finance committee take some action on bills to license gambling and use the revenues for relief and old age pensions.

"A vote on principle to determine the sentiment of the committee should be taken without further delay," Hesse asserted.

Rep. W. H. Whetro (D-Lawrence), sponsor of one of the bills, added:

"Enactment of a gambling license law will stop the local political racketeers, and there is an obvious need for finding greater sources of revenue for old age pensions."

CLUBS GRANTED SECOND 'STAY'

Chief Awaits Council Action, Gives Holders of Liquor Permits More 'Grace.'

der state law allows the owner to stay open until 2:30 a. m., to close at 1 a. m. on week-days and at midnight on Saturday, in compliance with a city ordinance, which takes precedence over state regulations.

A few days later, after night club owners protested that they were under contract to orchestras and entertainers for a certain number of hours of work, Bates announced a 30-day stay in his "curfew order." This period of grace would have expired next Saturday.

His announcement of the new period of grace today came in response to a query concerning enforcement of the city ordinance beginning Saturday.

After Bates issued his order, night club owners and liquor permit holders moved to have the city ordinance amended to permit them to operate during the hours prescribed by the state. Countering this move were petitions from churches, endorsing Bates' curfew order. The move for amendment of the ordinance was referred to a special council committee, headed by Porch. Other members are Lester Hunter and James E. Crum.

Judge Gives Opinion.

Porch's letter to Judge Kalbfleisch asked for his opinion on the proposal to change to closing hour set by ordinance.

In addition to urging stricter regulation instead of laxer rules, Kalbfleisch told Porch:

"The difficulties associated with the regulation of the liquor traffic are very frequently a source of conversation when people meet. Having been a listener as well as a participant in such discussions, I have concluded that at the outset when the 18th Amendment was repealed, the vast majority of the people voting for repeal believed there would be no return of the saloon.

"These same people now firmly believe that the present system is worse than the saloons (before prohibition) ever were, and from every side one hears predictions that unless the people engaged in the selling of intoxicating liquors voluntarily operate and conduct their establishments in an orderly manner, and that they shoulder the responsibility of enforcing moderation in the use of liquors, that we shall again have prohibition.

"It would seem to reasonable men that those so engaged could see the 'hand-writing on the wall', but obviously a lack of moral stamina and greed have overcome the better judgment of far too many of the manufacturers and permit holders.

"The legislature in Ohio had and still has the opportunity of creating a liquor control system free from the evils of corrupt practices, and until unselfish politics and illegitimate profits are eliminated from the liquor problem by courageous and forthright legislation, the local authorities will be confronted with the ever increasing obstacle of handling an uncontrollable system.

2 BOUND OVER

Youths Held to Grand Jury on Statutory Charges.

Two youths arraigned in municipal court today on statutory charges involving two different Mansfield girls were bound over to the grand jury.

Louis Bence, 21, of 333 East Second street, through his attorney, George Biddle, entered an innocent plea to a charge involving a 16-year-old girl, waived preliminary examination and was bound over to the grand jury under $2,000 bond.

Bence was named in a warrant signed by a Mansfield girl who, according to County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott, has been confined to a hospital for treatment for a social disease allegedly contracted at the time the offense was committed.

Ernie Jaynes, of Pavonia, pleaded guilty to a charge involving a 19-year-old Madison township girl and was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond.

Kelley's Report to Council Shows $91,000 Balance But Bills Due Total $30,000.

The city of Mansfield started the new year with an unencumbered balance of $61,849.08, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley told city council last night.

Kelley pointed out, however, that of the $91,000, approximately $30,000 in bills contracted by the city, had not been paid, leaving a net balance of $61,849.

To Relieve a Cold Is Not Enough

Father John's Medicine Not Only Helps Break Up Colds, But Builds Up The Body— 83 Years In Use. It Must Be Good.

The underlying, basic cause of colds is low vitality—a weakened system which must be nourished.

This is exactly what Father John's Medicine does. It is not "just another cold remedy." It contains healthful ingredients which build up the body and help to renew its vitality.

Father John's Medicine was prescribed for the Reverend Father John O'Brien of Lowell, Mass., in in 1855, and has been used for 83 years as a treatment for colds and coughs due to colds, and also as a proven body builder.
